Doctors and therapists at Texas Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children in Dallas gave Richard what nature tragically withheld. He was born without legs and a right arm. -WHAT NEXT?- Finance Brakes Applied

The Legislature Wednesday applied the brake to action on finance bills after a number of lawmakers openly admitted on the floor that they don't understand the proposals.

Sen. William Brandt of Unadilla opened the issue by urging the Unicameral to ask its technical staff to prepare a section-by-section analysis of five finance bills.

"We must be careful to fit this jigsaw together properly," he cautioned.

From then on, lawmakers were off on an hour and a half merry-go-round ride.

Recess Suggested

Sen. Elvin Adamson of Nenzel suggested that the Legislature recess for a week, beginning next Monday, in order to allow a thorough examination of finance measures.

Sen. Michael Russillo of Omaha urged that finance industry attorneys "should be the ones to explain (four penalty-reduction) bills. They wrote them."

Sen. William Skarda of Omaha thought assistance might be obtained from the University of Nebraska.

Sen. Don Thompson of McCook suggested that Sen. Albert Kjar of Lexington, chief sponsor of the four penalty-reduction measures, be given time to "obtain further information" and present it to the Legislature.

Kjar said that he would obtain the information—from industry attorneys.

Sen. George Gerdes of Alliance insisted that "too many attorneys are already mixed up in these bills."

'In the Dark'

Sen. George Syas of Omaha allowed that "we're going to continue in the dark all the way through this session anyway."

Introducing a class of 8th Grade students from Tecumseh, Sen. Lloyd Stalder of Humboldt proposed that "we turn it over to them for the answer."

Thompson warned that "we're looking ridiculous."

In the end, Brandt withdrew his motion and Adamson's proposed week-long recess was turned down on a 19-22 vote.

Later, Brandt told The Star that he will renew his request after all finance bills are "in a position where they can be considered together."

It is "extremely important that the Legislature have a complete understanding of all these bills," Brandt said.

"We must be careful not to let haste make waste."

Mead, Lexington Given Top Priorities For ETV

By BETTY PERSON
Star Staff Writer

Construction of transmitting stations at Mead and Lexington won top priority assignments from the Nebraska Educational Television Commission Wednesday in the initiation of a statewide ETV network.

Tabled, temporarily, was a determination of whether the commission will recommend that priority three be assigned to activation of an ETV broadcasting station at Omaha, or in western Nebraska.

Erection of a new Channel 12 ETV tower at Mead, with incresed power, won top approval on a 7-1 vote following a last-ditch plea from Omaha representatives that their proposed Channel 16 be granted top priority.

Approval of Mead and Lexington followed the recommendations of a commission subcommittee which had called for the Channel 12 installation, Lexington and Omaha's Channel 16 in that order.

More Study Due

A decision on the third priority assignment will follow additional study by commission members.

The commission agreed that as part of the Phase One development at Mead it will investigate the possibility of Omaha University's participating in the programming.

Commission Secretary Jack McBride, KUON-TV director, will study the costs and feasibility of Omaha participation in Channel 12 programming, and invite OU officials to discuss the matter at the commission's next meeting, Dec. 4 on the OU campus.

OU previously had expressed interest in participating in the programming.

University of Nebraska Chancellor Clifford Hardin made the recommendation that higher education institutions in Omaha be asked to join in ETV network programming.

No Disruption

In its recommendations that Channel 12's location at Mead be given top rating, the subcommittee stated it felt it would be "unwise" to disrupt Channel 12 because of its extensive operation experience, available facilities, and continuing program potential as provided by the educational facilities of a state university campus.

Boosting Channel 12's power and erection of the Mead tower would give "ample coverage for all schools in and about Omaha, Lincoln, York, Beatrice, Nebraska City, Fairbury and scores of other

One Contract For Country

. . . UP $1 MILLION A DAY

Washington (AP) — Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa announced Wednesday nationwide contract demands that would cost the U.S. trucking industry nearly $1 million a day over a 3-year period.

The proposed "master contract" would cover between 400,000 and 450,000 drivers, garage, mechanical, dock and clerical employes of some 16,000 truck firms in 48 states.

Hoffa told a news conference the union's demands for its first nationwide contract would be mailed out Friday to 40 trucking associations and thousands of individual truck firms.

He said he hopes negotiations can begin the first of next month in Chicago.

After meeting all day with a 75-man committee representing all teamsters locals, Hoffa outlined these details of the contract demands:

Fifteen cents more per hour per man each year over the 3-year contract period; $1 a week more each year for health and welfare benefits and a like amount additional each year for pensions; a reduction from 18 to 15 years of service for four weeks vacation and from 11 to 10 years for 3 weeks; 3 days off with pay for a union member in case of death in his immediate family; pay for jury service and 10 cents an hour for dental care.

Present wage rates vary slightly by districts. Hoffa said minimums range generally from $3.06 to $3.28 an hour, plus employer contributions of $6 a week for pensions, $3.50 a week for health and welfare, and other fringe benefits.

Hits 'Piggybackers'

He said another demand would apply to trucking firms using railroad "piggyback" transportation, in which truck trailers are hauled on flat cars. For each trailer loaded on a flat car, he said, these firms would be required to provide a day's pay to a local union driver unless all union members were on road trips that day. The amount would vary according to the length of the firm's average daily trip.

Hoffa said the nationwide package demand would count up to an average of about $900,000 per day throughout the three years of the proposed contract, based on about 250 working days per year. It would be lower at the beginning and higher at the end as graduated increases took effect.

Other sources said it was impossible at this point to give the percentage increase asked in the package. The 45-cent hourly wage increase by the end of three years would be about 14% above the present $3.17 hourly average.

Raise Rates

Hoffa said he did not expect the trucking industry to absorb the added cost of the union demands without raising rates.

"It will raise rates," he said but added that he could not estimate the amount because bigger trucks requiring fewer workers would absorb some of the extra costs.

Hoffa said the 16,000 firms that would come under the master contract make up about 85% of the nation's trucking industry.

Hoffa repeated statements he had made previously that the contract negotiations would not lead to any possibility of a nationwide strike. He said if any strikes became necessary they would be selective.

He said the more than 400,000 union members involved voted almost unanimously for the nationwide contract idea.

Hoffa will personally head the union's negotiators, which he said will include a 50-man policy committee and a 5-man group to conduct the actual negotiating talks.

Bottle Clubs Win 1-Vote Decision

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Bottle clubs won a battle for their lives in the Legislature Wednesday by a single vote.

A motion by Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff which would have restricted liquor licenses issued under the so-called bottle club law to non-profit corporations was turned down on a 19-20 vote.

Later, a motion to reconsider the issue failed on a 17-20 count.

Under debate was LB23, Sen. Marvin E. Stromer's bill to tighten regulations under which both bottle clubs and licensed non-profit corporations must operate.

Debate to Continue

Debate on the measure will continue Thursday, with a number of proposed legislative restrictions pending. Among them:

—a local option feature, whereby communities would need to approve bottle clubs by a vote of the people; proposed by Sen. T. C. Reeves of Central City.

—sale of liquor on Sunday by bottle clubs or non-profit corporations would first have to be authorized by the local governing body; proposed by Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton.

—a ban against sale of liquor by non-profit corporations on Sunday; proposed by Sen. Kenneth Bowen of Red Cloud and recommended by the Government and Military Affairs Committee.

Both Can Sell Now

Under language of the bill, only bottle clubs—as distinguished from non-profit corporations—would be prohibited from selling liquor on Sunday. Both types of operations can sell on Sunday now.

A Reeves proposal to limit bottle clubs to the limits of incorporated cities or villages was spurned on an 11-21 vote.

Carpenter termed bottle clubs "a disgrace" and "flagrant violators of the liquor laws . . . which sell liquor by the drink in communities that don't want it. They are dishonorable."

Present state law under which they operate (enacted by the regular 1963 session) is "looser than a goose," he declared.

The vote on Carpenter's motion, which he said would "make it impossible to operate a bottle club for private gain and profit," was:

For: Brandt, Brudenbaugh, Carpenter, Craft, Dunrow, Forrester, Gerhart, Kjar, Klaver, Kremer, Mahoney, McGinley, Nelson, Ogle, Reeves, Stalder, Stromer, Stuhr, Syas.

Against: Adamson, Baheusky, Bowen, Burbach, Claussen, Danner, Erickson, Fleming, Gerdes, Hazelbrook, Lesner, Marvel, Meyer, Nelson, E. Rasmussen, R. Rasmussen, Ruhnke, Russillo, Thompson, Warner, Wylie.

Not Voting: Foster, Gottschalk, Payne, Skarda.

Reeves' local option proposal was offered to "give the power of decision to the local level," he said.

Burbach's plan attracted considerable floor support before the Legislature adjourned for the day.

Among LB23's provisions which were adopted are a five-day waiting period for membership in bottle clubs; establishment of a locker system or card system and abolition of the power-of-attorney feature which permits members to acquire a drink without bringing a bottle.

NIK POINTS OUT DANGER OF BERLIN ROAD TUSSLE

Moscow (AP)—Premier Nikita Khrushchev told visiting American businessmen Wednesday that if the U.S. convoy dispute on the Berlin autobahn had continued "it is possible that you and I would not be here today."

While this carried the implication of a nuclear war, Khrushchev did not mention such a dread prospect directly.

He insisted the question was simply one of meeting force with force should the Americans try to break through a Soviet blockade.

Over Bodies

"We could not have yielded," the premier said, "and they would have had to move over our dead bodies."

Despite the grave concern the latest autobahn incident has created in world capitals, Khrushchev warned that more Western convoys will be held up unless they bow to what he called established procedure.

The premier said the dispute was solved Wednesday morning when the U.S. convoy, held up since Monday at the western end of the autobahn, agreed to "observe the established procedure."

Disputed

This view was promptly disputed both in Washington and by Maj. Gen. James H. Polk, U.S. commandant in Berlin. Polk said the Americans refused the Soviet demand that the 44 men in the convoy dismount for a count.

"They (the Americans) did not make an attempt to ignore the established procedure," Khrushchev said. "Thus our armored trucks came out of concealment to bar the way and then the American and British agreed to observe the established procedure."

A British convoy also was held up for a time on the superhighway between Berlin and West Germany. But a British spokesman in Berlin denied the convoy acceded to Soviet demands for a headcount.

No Reason

"There was no reason whatsoever for American soldiers to sit there for two days waiting to be allowed to go through," Khrushchev continued.

"In fact, I was surprised that they could stay in their trucks for such a long time. They must have reserve capacity . . .

"Your side caused the friction. We didn't want to have friction of that sort. Our desire is to have good and firendly relations and to develop economic relations."

Shooting?

At one point, Richard Clurman, chief of correspondents, Time-Life News Service, asked the premier:

"Are you saying that if we can't agree over the procedure on the autobahn that you would give an order that would result in a shooting and possible war?"

"No," Khrushchev replied, "we gave no such order but there is an established procedure. If this procedure is not followed, then they are not allowed to pass through.

U. S. PROTESTS RED DELAY OF CONVOY

Washington (AP) — The United States delivered a stiff protest to the Soviet Union Wednesday over the 42-hour delay of an American Army convoy on the highway to Berlin. The Convoy was finally released Tuesday night.

The note charged the Soviet action blocking the troop movement was deliberate, without justification, against established procedures, inadmissible and arbitrary.

And it concluded:

"The United States government requests the Soviet government immediately to instruct its military representatives in Germany to bring to an end once and for all these hindrances. The United States government will hold the Soviet government responsible for all consequences of the failure to comply with this request."

The American protest was presented at the Soviet Foreign Ministry in Moscow at 2:40 p.m. CST, along with identical notes from the British and French governments. The text was released here.

Soviet military personnel halted the 13-vehicle U.S. convoy enroute to Berlin early Monday as it entered East Germany. Demands that the soldiers dismount to be counted were refused. The convoy, finally allowed to proceed, rolled into Berlin early Wednesday.

Two Cleared

During the delay both a British and French convoy were cleared quickly by the Russians although they also refused to dismount and permit a head count.

"This very different treatment" emphasized the "arbitrary nature of this unjustified Soviet action," the protest note said.

"The . . . United States most emphatically protests the continued interference by the Soviet military authorities with the movement of allied convoys between West Berlin and West Germany," it stated.

Labor Shows Concern Over Missile Modification Project

Lincoln labor officials expressed concern Wednesday over conflicting reports about the hiring of local skilled labor for the modification program on the Atlas missile sites which ring the Lincoln Air Force Base.

Sen. Carl T. Curtis announced he will "seek to find out the real situation" on announcements by General Dynamics-Astronautics (GD-A) that the missile modification would be done by a civilian technician team brought into the area, and later word that present employes on the project included 139 hired locally.

GD-A officials at their Lincoln Air Force Base headquarters declined further comment on the statements, and San Diego GD-A headquarters also said that no announcement on the situation would be given.

None Requested

Lincoln Building Trades Council officials said that no skilled workmen had been requested by the GD-A employment office here, and only two skilled craftsmen had been hired through other sources. Local hiring has involved only clerical help for the modification program headquarters at LAFB.

"We helped build those missile silos and we helped install the 'birds' and the systems," stressed one skilled craft union man. "and now they tell us we can't do the modification work. We want to know why."

The union men cited a similar situation at Spokane, Wash., where modification work is being done by a 400-man crew—only 18 of them hired locally.

Queries by Washington state congressmen brought conflicting reasons for the importing of skilled workmen at the Fairchild AFB modification.

Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., was told by an Air Force official at the Pentagon that "the modernization program will afford the Air Force an excellent opportunity to train missle maintenance personnel . . . " and within 10 days, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., was informed by a second Air Force official in the Pentagon that "all of these personnel are highly skilled specialists on the various components and systems of the Atlas missile, and their training has taken a long period of time to acquire. It would be impossible to obtain personnel from the local area (Spokane) and attempt to provide them with the special training necessary to perform the work."

The Spokane project—like

Lincoln Building Trades Council officials said that no skilled workmen had been requested by the GD-A employment office here, and only two skilled craftsmen had been hired through other sources. Local hiring has involved only clerical help for the modification program headquarters at LAFB.

"We helped build those missile silos and we helped install the 'birds' and the systems," stressed one skilled craft union man. "and now they tell us we can't do the modification work. We want to know why."

The union men cited a similar situation at Spokane, Wash., where modification work is being done by a 400-man crew—only 18 of them hired locally.

Queries by Washington state congressmen brought conflicting reasons for the importing of skilled workmen at the Fairchild AFB modifaction.

Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., was told by an Air Force official at the Pentagon that "the modernization program will afford the Air Force an excellent opportunity to train missle maintenance personnel . . . " and within 10 days, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., was informed by a second Air Force official in the Pentagon that "all of these personnel are highly skilled specialists on the various components and systems of the Atlas missile, and their training has taken a long period of time to acquire. It would be impossible to obtain personnel from the local area (Spokane) and attempt to provide them with the special training necessary to perform the work."

Elections Leave GOP, Demos Satisfied

. . . DEMOCRATS CLAIM TOP PRIZES, BUT REPUBLICANS SEE DEFINITE TREND

Washington (AP)—Republicans found satisfaction in their showing but Democrats claimed the top prizes Wednesday in off-year elections that bore the marks of the civil rights struggle and the gathering battle for the White House.

President Kennedy, who took a personal hand in one key contest, passed word that he was "very satisfied" with the outcome.

The Republican National Committee saw "a definite Republican trend" in much of the balloting.

GOP Satisfied

"There is cause for solid Republican satisfaction," the committee said.

Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey said the elections left "Republicans with optimistic statistics and Democrats holding the offices which were clear tests of party strength."

Democrats withstood Republican challenges to win the elections for governor of Kentucky and mayor of Philadelphia. But the Democratic margins were whittled far below those of past years.

Overwhelmed

Democratic Lt. Gov. Paul Johnson overwhelmed a Republican opponent to win election as governor of Mississippi—but it was the first serious GOP challenge in that Deep South state since Reconstruction Days.

"We gave our opponents a real run for their money in Philadelphia and Kentucky," the Republican committee said. "In Mississippi a great stride has been made toward the establishment of a two-party system."

Republicans also could point to their strongest state election showing in New Jersey in a dozen years, and GOP victories in dozens of Indiana mayoral clashes.

Bailey countered:

"While there were the expected number of off-year turnovers in local elections on local issues, the Democrats triumphed in the two races which the Republicans publicized as expected harbingers of Republican resurgence in 1964—the mayoralty race in Philadelphia and the governor's race in Kentucky."

The Democratic chairman accused the Republicans of seeking "to drag civil rights into the arena of partisan politics" in Philadelphia and Kentucky.

Discourage

"This repudiation of Republican efforts to win votes by racist appeals should discourage similar racist adventures by Republican candidates in future campaigns," Bailey said.

At the White House, administration political analysts said they saw no evidence that the racial issue figured in the election outcome.

And Press Secretary Pierre Salinger, speaking for the President, said, "We were very satisfied with the results."

Big Assist

Democratic Mayor James H. J. Tate of Philadelphia, who got a campaign assist from Kennedy, topped Republican James T. McDermott—but the Democratic margin of nearly 61,000 votes was the smallest in 12 years.

Tate drew heavily on Kennedy's support in his last-minute campaign, and got large margins in the voting in predominantly Negro districts.

The 53-year-old mayor had accused McDermott of "playing for the white vote" in the racially troubled Pennsylvania city.

Indecision

McDermott accused Tate of indecision on civil rights, and said that had produced part of the racial unrest in Philadelphia.

Democrat Edward T. Breathitt Jr., a heavy favorite, won a slim victory over Republican Louie B. Nunn in the Kentucky gubernatorial race.

Nunn, who campaigned against an executive order calling for integration of public accommodations in Kentucky, made the strongest GOP gubernatorial showing in 20 years.

Combs' Order

Retiring Democratic Gov. Bert Combs issued the order, but court action has kept it from going into effect. Nunn called it dictatorial and charged it was designed to win Negro votes

The Republican candidate also aimed some of his campaign fire at Kennedy.

In Mississippi, Johnson polled a record-shattering vote and built a lead of almost 2 to 1 over Republican Rubel Phillips.

Leader

Johnson campaigned as a leader of southern opposition to President Kennedy and the administration civil rights program, and promised to support unpledged Democratic electors in next year's presidential election. He hopes southerners can use unpledged electoral votes to bargain for civil rights concessions.

Phillips also campaigned as an unyielding foe of Kennedy and of racial integration.

His campaign slogan linked him with Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, a top possibility for the party's 1964 presidential nomination.

War Cry

The Phillips war cry: "Phillips in '63, Goldwater in '64."

A Democrat was elected mayor of San Francisco for the first time in 55 years. Rep. John F. Shelley topped Republican Supervisor Harold Dobbs in an election officially listed as nonpartisan.

In New Jersey, Democratic Gov. Richard J. Hughes suffered a pair of setbacks. Voters turned down a $750 million bond issue he proposed for colleges, state institutions and highways; and put Republicans in control of both branches of the state legislature.

Switches

In Indiana, dozens of mayors' offices switched from Democratic to Republican hands, although Democrat John J. Barton held the Indianapolis mayorlty for the Democrats.

The new lineup in Indiana mayors' offices: Republicans 62, Democrats 49.

The outcome in some other elections:

—Mrs. Louise Day Hicks, who flatly denied NAACP charges of de facto segregation in Boston schools, led the city ticket in winning re-election to the school committee.

—Former mayor Maynard E. Sensenbrenner, a Democrat, won a come-back victory in Columbus, Ohio, and Democrat Anthony B. Flask was elected mayor of Youngstown, Ohio. White House political experts mentioned those victories as favorable signs for the party.

UP AND OVER, TWICE

Robert F. Courter Jr., 37, left, and Peter L. Kedzierski, 20, soar side-by-side in rocket belts over the Bell Aerosystems Co. administration building at the Niagara Falls, N.Y., airport. It was the first duel flight for the pair, who have made more than 200 flights each.

Reds Buying Wheat Out Of Need—U.N.

Geneva (UPI) — The Soviet Union is buying wheat from the West because it is needed desperately and not because Russia wants to amass huge stocks, the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe said Wednesday.

Moscow can't gamble on producing a better crop next year, the commission said in an exhaustive analysis of economic conditions in eastern Europe.

In fact, the state of agriculture as a whole in Communist Europe is bad at the best and disastrous at the worst, it said.

The rest of east Europe's economy is not much better.

The report, released Wednesday, said industrial expansion in eastern Europe continued to slacken during the first half of 1963 "partly but by no means entirely" because of the severe winter.

The report also said western Europe's economy is expanding after a winter setback but that the rate of growth in 1963 will be lower than in 1962, except in the United Kingdom.

The winter cold and the wet summer had an adverse effect on western European agricultural output, as well as that of eastern Europe, but the damage was not nearly so great, the report said.

Looking into the future, the report forecast a continuance of present trends for industrial western Europe during the next six months, with no major recessionary forces at work and no renewed boom in prospect.

No Improvement

Agricultural output shows little or no improvement over last year, the growth of the national product is decelerating, prices are rising but wages are standing still, it said

Industrial output in the area increased seven per cent in the first half of the year over the same period in 1962, but this was two per cent less than previous increases.

If the Soviet Union is excluded, leaving the satellites by themselves, the deceleration trend is more marked, the report said The growth of industrial output in that case fell to only three and one-half per cent in 1963 from eight per cent in 1962 and nine per cent in 1961

Under Planned

This is well under the planned growth of six per cent, the report said

Industrial output increased more or less according to plan in Romania, Bulgaria, the Soviet Union and Albania, it said.

But Czechoslovakia, East Germany and Poland—which together produce about 80% of eastern Europe's industrial output—registered the smallest rise since the war.

Increase

Poland and East Germany have managed to increase production by three to four per cent over 1962 but Czechoslovakia has suffered a two per cent drop, according to the report.

"The relatively small, and frequently ill-distributed, reserves of some raw materials, fuels and electricity generating capacity in these countries make their industries vulnerable to any dislocation of transport and unexpected increases in demand for fuels and power," the report said.

And this is just what did happen last winter in Czechoslovakia, Poland and East Germany, it said.

Long Frost

On agriculture, the report said the long period of frost at the beginning of the year had a considerable, "and in the Soviet Union a disastrous," effect on wheat and other grain crops

Vegetables and berries generally were sufficient but three fruit crops were ravaged by frost.

Fodder is short in eastern Europe and has resulted in cattle and pig herds in most bloc nations declining, the report said Output of animal products is smaller than in previous years, with egg production and milk output both down.

House Okays College Construction Program

Washington (UPI) — The House Wednesday approved a $1.2 billion college construction program. Senate passage would make the bill the first major education measure to clear Congress this session.

The compromise legislation worked out by House-Senate conferees would authorize a three year program of federal grants and loans for the construction of college classrooms, libraries and laboratories.

The vote was 258 to 92. There was no opposing debate and the votes against it were cast by southern Democrats and conservative Republicans.

Part Of Program

The construction proposal was part of President Kennedy's $5 billion omnibus education program, most of which stands little chance of enactment this year

A separate bill to provide federal aid for vocational education is presently being studied by a Senate-House conference committee. A compromise is expected to emerge shortly.

The college construction bill still must overcome some Senate opposition to providing federal aid to church-connected schools.

Major Block

The issue was the major obstacle which had to be worked out by the conferees. None of the money under the program could be used to construct building, for the study or practice of religion.

The program would authorize $690 million in matching grants for undergraduate libraries, laboratories and classrooms designed for science, mathematics, engineering and modern foreign languages. Public junior colleges and technical institutes would be eligible for 22% of this money.

An additional $145 million would be authorized for college graduate school facilities.

Also provided would be $360 million in long-term, low-interest loan funds. Colleges would be permitted to obtain up to one third of building costs through grants and three-fourths of the remaining costs by loans.

Community Program Need Stressed By Texan

The agricultural Extension agent must become a motivator to mobilize all resources that are agriculturally-oriented into programs for the future, a Texas sociologist told Nebraska Extension workers at their annual conference here Wednesday.

Reagan Brown, Extension sociologist from Texas A.&M. College, in pointing up the importance of community and area development in Extension work, said "hundreds of small towns and communities are dying because they sit and spit and whit and get no planned programs, no concern for social and economic change."

Brown described the present era as one of "cultural uniformity," which means that "you can't tell the country folks from the city folks." He said Extension leaders no longer can design rural-urban programs per se. "The programs are designed for the benefit of the whole community or the whole county with the thinking of all groups in mind," he pointed out.

He cited these other factors which will have and are having a great influence in the direction of Extension programs to serve the people:

—Extension will deal more and more with part-time farmers. With a higher educational level and rapid means of communications and transportation, the part-time farmer will be freer to participate in activities of his own choosing.

—Senior citizens as a group make up one of the greatest potentials for leadership in the Extension program. About 10% of the population is over 65 years old, and by 1980, sociologists believe many people will live to be 100 years old. There are 10,000 persons over 100 years of age in America today. "Time is the most important factor in America today," Brown declared, "and many of the people over 65 have time to be 4-H leaders, chamber of commerce participants and community leaders," he said.

E. W. Janike, director of the NU Extension Service, asked Extension workers not to let the traditions of nearly 50 years of successful service in continuing education be a millstone around their necks in meeting the challenge of necessary change.

Pointing out that the farm and ranch population has changed from a majority to a minority, and continues to grow smaller, Janike said:

"How well we serve the continuing education needs of the people of this state will be determined by the adjustments we make in the Extension Service, in the College of Agriculture, and in the University of Nebraska."

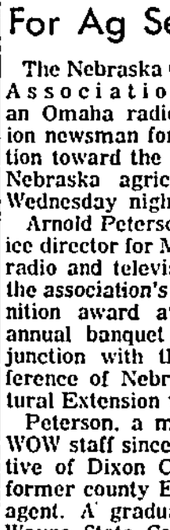
Baxter Chosen New President County Agents

W. Neal Baxter of North Platte, Lincoln County agent, was elected president of the Nebraska Association of County Agricultural Agents Wednesday, at their meeting here at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.



Baxter

He succeeds Arthur C. Moseman of Dakota City, Dakota County agent, who becomes a member of the board of directors.

The meeting was in conjunction with the annual conference of the University of Nebraska Agricultural Extension Service, which continues through Friday.

Other new officers include: Harry H. Hecht of York, York County agent, vice president, and Lester Burnham of Minden, Kearney County agent, reelected secretary-treasurer.

Peterson Cited For Ag Service

The Nebraska County Agents Association recognized an Omaha radio and television newsman for his contribution toward the betterment of Nebraska agriculture here Wednesday night.

Arnold Peterson, farm service director for Meredith WOW radio and television, received the association's annual recognition award at the agents' annual banquet held in conjunction with the state conference of Nebraska Agricultural Extension workers.

Peterson, a member of the WOW staff since 1953, is a native of Dixon County, and a former county Extension agent. A graduate of both Wayne State College and the University of Nebraska, he has been closely associated with agriculture in the state throughout his life.

Nebraska Towns Lack Home Rule, Says Phye

By GENE BUDIG
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Fremont — City Administrator Ned Phye Wednesday said freedom-loving Nebraska communities are deprived of "home rule."

According to the official, who last week resigned to accept a similar post in Colorado, claimed obsolete state statutes do the ruling, not the people.

"This alarming situation has done much to stunt municipal growth in Nebraska," he said.

A majority of the statutes applying to municipalities, he claimed, are dated and "very definitely not designed to meet modern needs."

He said many of these laws have gone without revision for 25 years.

"One law, passed in 1901 and amended in 1922 and 1929, does not allow cities of the first class to give pay raises to department heads more than once every two years," he related.

Phye insisted such a provision does not allow city administrators to cope with unforeseen problems.

"We've lost a lot of good people because of this ruling," he noted.

The spokesman also pointed to the investment of idle city funds.

"Nebraska cities hesitated to invest idle monies because the statutes did not specifically say they could," he said.

Phye added that he invested excess Fremont funds because "the statutes didn't say we couldn't either." The city realized $50,000 profit in three years.

At the same time, he defended the Legislature, saying, "Senators don't have time to solve all of our municipal problems."

Criticizes League

Rather, he scored the League of Municipalities for failing to educate the Legislature and the public.

"It's the league's job to bring this problem to the attention of the senator and the city taxpayer," he inserted.

Phye claimed the Nebraska branch of the league is "totally inadequate" and "unable to solve the problem as it now exists."

"Our league has only two full-time employes while the state of Kansas has 18. It's no wonder we find it hard to compete with our neighbors," he said.

The spokesman also said the public does not fully realize the role of city government has changed over the past couple decades.

"We're no longer just an orderly house-keeping unit. We're a group, which plans such vital measures as urban renewal and housing for the aged," he declared.

He concluded by saying Nebraskans should acknowledge the growth of city government, not fight it.

Henn To Speak

Page — Jerome Henn of Petersburg, state commander of the American Legion, will be the main speaker at the annual Veterans Day program here Thursday night.

VETERANS' DAY PARADE SET

Veterans Day will be highlighted Monday by a parade in downtown Lincoln, according to Donal Finn, chairman of Lincoln Post 3 of the American Legion.

The parade will start at 10:30 a.m. at 8th and O, move down O to 15th, then south to Pershing Auditorium.

Gov. Frank Morrison will be the featured speaker at the program at Pershing following the parade.

The 43rd National Guard Band, Lincoln Drum and Bugle Corps, American Legion Color Guard, marching troops from Lincoln Air Force Base and other marching units will take part in the parade.

Parish Ministry 'Life Behind Scenes,' Methodists Are Told

Omaha (AP)—The parish ministry is "life behind the scenes and in small print," Bishop John Wesley Lord of Washington, D.C. told Nebraska Methodist leaders Wednesday.

He was among speakers at a meeting during which Nebraska Methodists gave special consideration to "the challenge and the glory of the Christian ministry." It was one of a series being held across the country.

Bishop Lord, whose topic was "The Glory of the Parish Ministry," said "there is much in the parish ministry that is not glorious. Much of it is humdrum, tedious, unrewarding and unattractive."

He said it often dealt with the "vagaries of the small scale individual and the church gossip and the minutest of church detail."

He called the ministry a "life lived in a fish bowl, under the scrutiny of parsonage committees and church officials who find in the life of the church an outlet for their own frustrations and incompetencies."

Bishop Lord said he suspected the "glories of the military chaplaincies is the absence of an 'official board' or district superintendent or bishop. There are no quotas, apportionments and quadrennial programs to worry about. There is greater freedom in the special service, outside the parish ministry."

the LAFB work—is slated to take at least a year, and provide work for about 400 personnel, including 125 GD-A construction engineers and supervisors. Work at the Lincoln base began Oct. 21 and moves to the sites about mid-November.

Union officials, in Lincoln, protesting the conflicting reports and the lack of information on the project, plan to appeal to national union headquarters for support in the drive to hire local skilled labor, or to receive specific information on why the missile work requires imported labor.

Sen. Curtis cautioned that "all the facts must be brought out" before any action is taken. He suggested that matters of security might be involved in the modification program, but stressed that "any reasonable explanation of the situation should be made public."

FRENCH WORKERS STAGE BIG STRIKE

Paris (UPI) — A massive anti-government strike by 1.7 million French workers Wednesday closed schools and crippled industry, railroads, subways and utilities.

In the face of the widespread protest by state employes, President Charles de Gaulle and his cabinet decided to boost a scheduled pay raise for the public service workers from three to four per cent.

The nationwide walkout was considered the most concerted action yet against De Gaulle's policy of freezing wages to halt inflation.

Other Cuts

Information Minister Alain Peyrefitte said after a cabinet meeting that the $80 million cost of the extra wage boost due by next spring would force cuts in other sections of the national budget.

Labor union which called the walkouts did not indicate immediately whether the increase was sufficient to stem the labor unrest.

Observers believed the government made the concession to prevent a mushrooming of discontent among state employes whose salaries lag far behind those of workers in private industry.

Deprived

The 24-hour strike deprived the country of electricity and gas, halted commuter railroad and Paris subway services, closed schools and most government offices, and forced segments of industry to a standstill for lack of power.

The walkout hit at a time when the government anti-inflation plan decreed Sept. 12 was beginning to push commodity prices down through a complex system of price ceilings, taxes and subsidies.

Labor unions plastered the working class suburbs with large posters citing low salaries. Some starting monthly salaries quoted were $90, plus substantial social benefits.

Heading the strikers were 200,000 gas and electricity workers who walked out at 8 a.m. The walkout closed the Paris subways and disrupted electric train service across the country.

An estimated 500,000 teachers stayed away from the primary and secondary schools, canceling classes for the day.

Mail was left undelivered, and garbage uncollected. Non-automatic telephone service was disrupted. Most homes had no heat or television. Only hospitals were spared the electricity cuts.

Air service at Orly and Le Bourget airports was curtailed, although army and air force personnel were ordered into emergency service at the terminals.

Community Program Need Stressed By Texan

The agricultural Extension agent must become a motivator to mobilize all resources that are agriculturally-oriented into programs for the future, a Texas sociologist told Nebraska Extension workers at their annual conference here Wednesday.

Reagan Brown, Extension sociologist from Texas A.&M. College, in pointing up the importance of community and area development in Extension work, said "hundreds of small towns and communities are dying because they sit and spit and whit and get no planned programs, no concern for social and economic change."

Brown described the present era as one of "cultural uniformity," which means that "you can't tell the country folks from the city folks." He said Extension leaders no longer can design rural-urban programs per se. "The programs are designed for the benefit of the whole community or the whole county with the thinking of all groups in mind," he pointed out.

He cited these other factors which will have and are having a great influence in the direction of Extension programs to serve the people:

—Extension will deal more and more with part-time farmers. With a higher educational level and rapid means of communications and transportation, the part-time farmer will be freer to participate in activities of his own choosing.

—Senior citizens as a group make up one of the greatest potentials for leadership in the Extension program. About 10% of the population is over 65 years old, and by 1980, sociologists believe many people will live to be 100 years old. There are 10,000 persons over 100 years of age in America today. "Time is the most important factor in America today," Brown declared, "and many of the people over 65 have time to be 4-H leaders, chamber of commerce participants and community leaders," he said.

E. W. Janike, director of the NU Extension Service, asked Extension workers not to let the traditions of nearly 50 years of successful service in continuing education be a millstone around their necks in meeting the challenge of necessary change.

Pointing out that the farm and ranch population has changed from a majority to a minority, and continues to grow smaller, Janike said:

"How well we serve the continuing education needs of the people of this state will be determined by the adjustments we make in the Extension Service, in the College of Agriculture, and in the University of Nebraska."

In The Twilight

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

It is often maintained that retirement is the ruination of many a man. At their own particular point in life, however, many men think this a little hard to understand. To the individual who eats, sleeps and breathes his business, retirement might be a low blow. If his business is his only interest and he is suddenly deprived of this interest, then he may well find himself in a difficult situation.

Thus, it would seem prudent to advise that people not become too devoted to any single pursuit. It is one thing to give a full day's work for a full day's pay, to reverse that popular saying, and it is another thing to work yourself to death. If you worked yourself to death, you wouldn't have to worry about retirement but we are not speaking quite so literally here. Along with work, a man or woman should try to cultivate some outside interests that will fill their empty hours in later years. There is an endless number of things that men can do, for instance, and not at great expense.

Broadening Interests

You hear a lot about the high cost of fishing and hunting, for instance, but this is largely an individual matter. A good fishing outfit can be obtained for less than $15 and you can get in the business for a few bucks if you want to settle for a pole with a hook and line attached to the end of it.

Hunting is somewhat more expensive to get into as well as to pursue. Guns can be obtained for just about any price, from $25 up to hundreds or even thousands of dollars. But with hunting, there is the matter of ammunition, clothing, etc., that can get to cost money. Even this sport, however, can be pursued at relatively little cost if the hunter forgets his champagne tastes.

With many men, both hunting and fishing are no more, anyway, than the means to another end. They may like the sport of hunting or fishing but what they really like is just the getting out of doors and seeing the countryside. Toward this end, the person who wanted to invest the least in his pursuit could simply take up hiking and the identification of plants, birds and animals. It would seem that an interest in botany, when one had the time to pursue it out of doors, doesn't even scratch the surface of things to do. One can take up a craft if he likes, pursue an entirely new career on a part-time basis, get a little piece of land that can be farmed, write, paint, travel or any number of things.

The important thing is that the individual develop some interest outside the career that has occupied him all his life. Some, perhaps, are in work that can be pursued at a reduced rate even after retirement but most people are ready for some kind of change after 40 years or so in the same old harness. As seen by many with a variety of interests, the person who is bored with retirement is one who has failed to fully develop himself, his capacity and his interests. He has let himself become stagnant. It should be remembered, however, that it is never too late to expand one's field of knowledge and much evidence has been gathered to support that theory.

One thing that will add to the beauty and reduce the disappointment of retirement in future years is the growth in pension programs. The Institute of Life Insurance reports that retirement plans of private industry and government now pay a total annual income of about $5 billion to the nation's retired workers.

In 1962, private pension plans had enrolled under them 2 million pensioners and 23.5 million active workers. The institute notes that private pension plans combined with Social Security now provide a retired employe who has considerable job longevity with an average pension of between 25 to 50 percent of the average salary he earned during his last 10 years of employment.

This, of course, raises another important consideration for the active worker of today. It is absolutely vital that the individual have his financial affairs in order at retirement time. Either he must reduce his liabilities to the point where they can be met within the range of retirement income or else additional retirement income must be provided for. The fellow who goes blithely on in the belief that the future will, somehow, take care of itself is the fellow who will end up with a lot of retirement worries.

Looking To The Future

Undoubtedly, pension programs will improve some in the years ahead but few of them are yet to the point where they are sufficient in themselves. They require something on the side such as income from investments, insurance, etc. This end of the income can be planned, also, as some hedge against the possibility of inflation.

Kennedy's Score On Church-State

WASHINGTON — During the pre-election campaign that put the first Catholic president in the White House, I received a great deal of critical mail from Protestants because I claimed that John F. Kennedy, if elected, would observe the constitutional separation of church and state. I said at that time, however, if he did not, I would report it.

Here is a report on two phases of the church and state issue where the first Catholic president has taken important and significent positions regarding his own church.

The first is in regard to South Viet Nam where he has opposed one powerful group inside his church. The other is in regard to federal aid to Catholic colleges where he has sided with his church.

Very little has leaked out about the manner in which the United States got so heavily involved in Viet Nam on the side of the unpopular minority Diem family. But the man who had most to do with it was Cardinal Spellman of New York who has made four pilgrimages to South Viet Nam where he was welcomed as a saviour. He was instrumental in persuading the Eisenhower administration to send heavy relief funds and later military forces to that country.

On Spellman's first trip around Christmas 1955, he made headlines with a $100,000 gift to Catholic refugees who had fled from the communist north to the south. But simultaneously, the Eisenhower administration gave a Christmas gift of $20,571,428 of U.S. aid and food to these refugees, most of them Catholic.

Ever since then, Cardinal Spellman's drive has been to bolster the Catholic minority in a country which is about 10 per cent Catholic and over 40 per cent Buddhist. He has been the No. 1 supporter of the unpopular Diem family. When Diem's brother, archbishop Ngo-Dinh-Thuc was refused an audience with the Pope last summer, it was considered significant that he came immediately to New York to call on Cardinal Spellman. It was on the cardinal that Mme. Nhu also paid her first call when she arrived in the United States.

It should be noted that the Vatican disagreed with Spellman on Viet Nam, as it has on many things. Not only did Pope Paul refuse to receive Diem's brother, the archbishop, but last summer during the climax of the anti-Buddhist persecution, Paul sent a message to Saigon asking "mutual respect for legitimate liberties."

President Kennedy, though a little slow in coming to grips with the Vietnamese crisis, finally lined up against Spellman and the Catholic ruling family. He recognized that the Catholic rulers had made themselves so unpopular that there could be no effective opposition to communism as long as they were in power.

The White House did not conspire to throw out the Diem family. What it did do was to withdraw U.S. payments of $250,000 per quarter to the special forces which had kept Diem in office. This was the U.S.-armed-and-equipped terrorist outfit, paid by all the U.S. tax-payers, which raided the Buddhist temples last August and dragged worshippers off to jails. When their pay was cut off by our Central Intelligence Agency, it was the tip-off that the U.S. policy had changed and meant that the downfall of Diem was inevitable.

JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Molner: Our six-month-old baby has eczema. She is strictly on a diet, prescribed by our doctor, but at least once a day her body flames up in red spots. The itching is terrible and she is scratched all over.—B.C.

Molner

Eczema is not unusual in babies, and frequently appears at about three months.

This annoying skin rash is generally a form of allergy. If both parents had some sort of allergy, perhaps mild enough so that neither recognized it as such, the baby can have an intense tendency in that direction.

The likeliest "trigger" for the attacks is some food, although it may be something that is touched: wool, soaps, ordinary dust, the lacquer finish on the crib, etc.

As for foods, milk and cereals should be suspected first. Soybean milk, or even goat's milk can be substituted for cow's milk. Oat cereals can be used instead of the usual wheat cereals.

Fruit or vegetable (in puree form) may be the cause. Still a bit later babies begin getting eggs in one form or another, or strained meats. These, too, can be culprits.

I agree that it's not easy for parents or doctor to put a finger on the offending food (if it is a food allergy) right off. Sometimes skin tests help solve the mystery.

In time, youngsters usually outgrow eczema, but it is such a trying thing, both for babies and parents, that the sooner it is cured, the better. And usually it can be.

The scratching should be controlled, or limited, because the scratches admit miscellaneous transient infections which accentuate the whole problem. Bland anti-itching lotions or creams reduce irritation, and mittens or bandages on the hands prevent clawing.

Eczema isn't a disease that's inherited. What is inherited is allergy — and the allergy causes rash and itching, and the rash is "eczema."

Dear Dr. Molner: Almost three years ago I had a breast removed. I have been X-rayed several times and the doctor says everything is clear. My arm is still swollen, and around the shoulder, and the breast bones are so stiff that I suffer at times. I have taken so many pain pills that my stomach is ruined. What can be done to relieve this tightness and hurting?—MRS. H.S.

This sort of condition can, indeed, occur after extensive breast surgery. The lymphatic glands in the armpit are disturbed. Scar tissue forms and causes the arm to swell.

In addition, this same condition tends to act as a sort of natural "splint" on the shoulder, making it painful and stiff.

Physiotherapy can help appreciably. I mean a combination of things, not a single procedure.

Massage; assisted motion of the joint; heat; a long sleeve on the arm; appropriate exercise—all of these or some of them can help.

The process, I admit, is tedious, but it is frequently successful.

A "rehabilitation institute" or some similar facility in your community will provide this kind of therapy.

Dear Dr. Molner: My three-year-old granddaughter recently had shingles. I have never heard of it occurring in a child before. Is there anything we can do to correct the cause? She responded well to treatment.—MRS. K.C.

Shingles can occasionally occur in children. The cause is the same as in adults. It is a virus similar to chicken-pox. The vesicles or "spots" follow the course of a nerve instead of being scattered indiscriminately as in chicken-pox.

Fortunately, shingles is much milder and less painful in children. One attack usually provides immunity.

Dear Dr. Molner: One eyelid hangs much lower than the other. What can I do to have it corrected?—C.R.

Drooping of one eyelid is frequently traced to a disturbance of the nerve controlling it. Infection and various toxic factors are often the causes. If treatment for such troubles does not succeed, there are operations for raising the lid. An eye specialist can decide the best course.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Molner: Concerning hepatitis, do serum shots make a person immune? Why does it take so long to cure hepatitis? If it's contagious, how does it spread?—MRS. M.F.

First, there is no serum or vaccine that can give permanent immunity. Gamma globulin will provide a few months of immunity.

Second, the time required for a cure depends on the severity of the individual case. This varies widely because there is no specific cure. All we can do is make conditions as easy as possible for the liver to "cure itself." The liver has remarkable power to do this.

Third, contact with body secretions appears to be the major means of contagion, particularly the stool. Avoid kissing. Be sanitarily careful in handling soiled clothing, bedding, body wastes.

Dr. Molner welcomes all mail from his readers, but because of the great volume received daily he is unable to answer individual letters. Dr. Molner uses readers letters in his column whenever possible.

No Voters' Revolution

All the way from Mississippi to Philadelphia Democratic candidates prevailed in the so-called telltale off year elections this week.

It now remains for the political hopefuls and the news pundits to read what they can into it for whatever comfort it gives them. Republicans as well as Democrats can take hope, depending upon how wistful they are.

For the common man the only useful interpretation of the returns is the failure of the polling to reveal any voters' revolution. One such seldom takes place during periods of national well being. And despite what critics say the U.S. economy is rolling along with excellent profits and full employment for the most part.

The Mississippi elections cast little if any light on the national scene. Both candidates emphasized an anti-civil rights, anti-Kennedy position. Thus with no opportunity for a pro and con confrontation as far as national policy is concerned, traditionally Democratic Mississippi continued to be Democratic. And that very much is the way things were in 1960.

While some Republican gains were registered in Philadelphia they were insufficient to displace the Democratic candidate running for a second term. Here again local considerations largely held sway.

Much the same can be said of the Kentucky results.

Some reassurance may be interpreted from the Philadelphia returns because the winning candidate had the open support of the Kennedy forces.

Clearly the 1964 presidential campaign will be of different stuff, affected by events yet to come and by issues that will be drawn on a national basis.

Not Best, But Better

The interest rates bill which appears to be gathering the most strength in the special session of the Legislature is an improvement over the situation as it has been in the past, even though the bill is weak in some areas. The bill, LB11, creates three different forms of credit. Standard banking operations, for instance, would come under the 9 percent usury provision.

Next would be a 12 per cent rate that would apply to time sales and similar installment transactions. Finally, there would be provisions for small loans with a top rate of 30 per cent on the first $300 borrowed, 24 per cent on the next $200, 18 per cent on the next $500 and 12 per cent on amounts over $1,000.

As to rates, there can be no argument except in the area of installment loans where 30 per cent is still far too high. By applying rates to a reduced scale of amount loaned, the interest charges themselves are, in effect, reduced but it is disappointing that the Legislature has not made a greater reduction than is now indicated. Fortunately, the majority of credit operations will be done under the time sales provision where the rate is a realistic 12 per cent.

The other disappointment with an otherwise good bill is in the matter of penalties. They are adequate under the usury and installment loan provisions but too weak under time sales. Unscrupulous merchants will exceed the 12 per cent limit on time sales because the maximum penalty of forfeiture of double interest fails to make the risk of violation big enough. The senators are urged to make a renewed effort to correct at least this feature of LB11. If they do, they will have acted in a manner in which they can take pride.

Still A Favorite

As Indian summer holds on beyond its time presenting us with a succession of glorious days there is plenty of time to think about autumn.

The esthetic man uses the period to think about the reds and golds which gild the landscape. But the inner man thinks about pumpkin pie. It is a very American thought because it was the early American housewife who gave that delicious confection to the world.

Back in colonial times when we were playing fairly, briefly, with the Indians they shared a number of good things with us. These included corn and succotash. But pumpkin pie was our own invention. As we understand it, the Indians simply harvested their pumpkins, dried them and later on ate bits of them if there was nothing better around. But the colonial housewife cut them up fresh and after suitable cooking mixed them with milk, eggs and spice in just the right amounts. Then they baked the mixture in rich pie crust. And we immediately began to be a great country. And autumn took on a new and lasting significance.

Early day Nebraskans who came from farther east brought many practices with them. One of them was to plant pumpkins in the corn fields. That meant a good supply of winter vegetables and lots of homemade pumpkin pie. But mechanized farming put an end to that and most pumpkin pies are now manufactured in town. But so is almost everything we use and eat nowadays.

One is supposed always to be for the old times, but it must be admitted that present day pumpkin pies are as good as the old fashioned kind and have the advantage of being available at any time of the year. However, we are still grateful to the colonial housewife who thought them up and they still remind us of the bracing autumn days.

Poker Now A Lost Art; Women Ruined The Game

NEW YORK — Poker is dead; long live deuces, trays and one-eyed jacks wild!

I don't understand it, but the experts say that my sex killed poker as sure as a flush beats a straight (and I don't understand that, either).

It seems that women are blamed for introducing "gimmicks" to the game. A gimmick is considered to be any embellishment or variation from the purish five-card-draw version.

The theory of the experts is that the moment some woman got the bright idea of adding a couple more cards to the hand, as in seven-card stud, or of making any of them "wild" — the game began to deteriorate.

The poker of 1963 has gone to the point where it bears about as much resemblance to "the great old American game of poker" as a Lionel train bears to the New York Central RR.

"It all happened in the 20th century," writes John Lukacs (in "Horizon"). First, poker was the victim of the rise of independent women early in the century — notoriously bad gamblers, he maintains.

Later, in the war years, the game declined in the hands of servicemen who played it to relieve boredom and make money — rather than as an artful pursuit.

And now, declares Lukacs, it has become the tool of "military strategists who over-analyze it and — in the process — destroy its subtlety and excitement."

Lukacs, a college history professor, goes so far as to say (and this will shock many a churchman) that in losing poker as an art, modern society has also lost its "self-restraint, individualistic American quality.

"The deterioration of poker is a reflection of a decline in the character of Americans."

His theory is that real poker is a class-less sport; a game of and for individual gentlemen.

"Poker's uniqueness," he says, "was in being a game where consequences are controlled not so much by chance or fate as by human beings who decide what will happen. The challenge of a good game of poker without gimmicks is that the player will try, and be able by his skill, to make much of a bad hand. In this respect, poker, well-played, is the game where the individual prevails over chance or fate—where men are free agents."

In the deterioration of poker, then, lies "a reflection of a decline in the character of Americans."

He may have a point there. At any rate, I'm going to give it a lot of thought before I ever again demand sixes wild.

Grandpa Says

Guide Rock, Neb.

I see by the papers that the Farm Bureau is planning to come out again for raising the REA interest rates.

Grandpa says this ain't the first time them boys been for the farmer kickin' himself in the seat of the pants. He says he read that them Farm Bureau boys met with some of the big power companies once, and then came out for raisin' the REA interest rates even higher than the power boys wanted them.

Grandpa says he heard one of them Farm Bureau boys talk for half an hour once about "progressin' backwards" and this REA deal sounds like some more of their "reversive" progress philosophy to him. He says the only thing that bothers him is that he ain't ever heard of anyone but cowards and weaklings backin' and even they didn't try to pass it off as progress.

Grandpa says if you think that the Farm Bureau won't talk some of them farmers into raising their own light bills and takin' less at the same time, you better think again on it, on account of, for every string of bologna, there is a crack-pot somewhere to put it in.

DOBBIN BYRD

Missouri Plan

Lincoln, Neb.

The public well may ask what is to be gained by divorcing the Nebraska State Bar Association from the Supreme Court and making it possible for a lawyer to practice law without being a member of the bar association. The answer to this is the same as the answer to the "right to work" laws. They make it impossible for a union ever to be in complete control of a situation. There are always those who do not seek union assistance to work. Where there are "closed" shops, it leads to a gangster element sometimes worming its way into union offices.

Of course this approach is heretical thinking, according to many lawyers. By divorcement from the Supreme Court, they will no longer be able to say, "We are officers of the court and entitled to a certain amount of immunity." Citizens who are bilked by dishonest lawyers can still have their redress against them in the ordinary way of criminal law by presenting their grievance in the form of a complaint to the county attorney and having him prosecute the malefactor.

Further, if the bar association divorces itself from the Supreme Court and its offices in the Statehouse, perhaps the voters will begin to realize that the "Missouri Plan" was not all they thought it was when they changed the constitution to allow this method of selection of judges. Certainly there will be no more primaries where men of different caliber are pitted against each other for the position. That is over. A small group will select the judge and that is a throwback to undemocratic days.

If all the implications of the "Missouri Plan" had been properly understood, it is doubtful whether it would have carried.

This is not a question that concerns lawyers only. It is in the public interest and concerns all voters. It is a simple question. In 1937 the Supreme Court simply acted without authority when it created the Nebraska Bar Association. To date not one member has stepped forward to produce the questioned authority.

CAESARIUS

Work To Do

Lincoln, Neb.

There is a great cry of unemployment throughout the land, and the teenagers pathetically bemoan the fact that it is next to impossible for them to find jobs. There is plenty to be done, if anyone is not afraid of hard work.

Just try to find a man or boy to mow a lawn or rake or spade a garden or prune trees or help with storm windows or scoop snow. All these things come under the heading of physical labor and the thought of a few blisters or putting the muscles into play is too much, I guess.

Part of the trouble with this country is that the era of the easy buck has spoiled too many people and the fine old theory of giving an honest day's work for a day's pay has gone with the wind.

HOUSEHOLDER

Foreign Aid

Lincoln, Neb.

Foreign aid has become the whipping boy and it is our own fault.

A great deal of it actually has been spent in this country and exported in the form of machine tools and packaged industries. These are now turning out products in competition with our industry which is losing some of its world market. It is the old story of extending aid from the top down and of favoring certain segments of our economy.

Our best aid export has always been our surplus food. That's something that goes into people's stomachs and not into a few people's pockets. A more abundant diet is a prime requirement. It breeds contentment and releases the individual for more hours of useful work. If in a backward country a hungry man has to spend most of his time finding half enough to eat he has no time or energy left to improve his housing and help his country rise. Moreover food doesn't come back in the market to hurt us.

Exporting food would cost us less and help our economy more. But heavy influences playing on Washington distorts our efforts and in the end brings us trouble.

Fortunately, the majority of credit operations will be done under the time sales provision where the rate is a realistic 12 per cent.

The other disappointment with an otherwise good bill is in the matter of penalties. They are adequate under the usury and installment loan provisions but too weak under time sales. Unscrupulous merchants will exceed the 12 per cent limit on time sales because the maximum penalty of forfeiture of double interest fails to make the risk of violation big enough. The senators are urged to make a renewed effort to correct at least this feature of LB11. If they do, they will have acted in a manner in which they can take pride.

Still A Favorite

As Indian summer holds on beyond its time presenting us with a succession of glorious days there is plenty of time to think about autumn.

The esthetic man uses the period to think about the reds and golds which gild the landscape. But the inner man thinks about pumpkin pie. It is a very American thought because it was the early American housewife who gave that delicious confection to the world.

Back in colonial times when we were playing fairly, briefly, with the Indians they shared a number of good things with us. These included corn and succotash. But pumpkin pie was our own invention. As we understand it, the Indians simply harvested their pumpkins, dried them and later on ate bits of them if there was nothing better around. But the colonial housewife cut them up fresh and after suitable cooking mixed them with milk, eggs and spice in just the right amounts. Then they baked the mixture in rich pie crust. And we immediately began to be a great country. And autumn took on a new and lasting significance.

Early day Nebraskans who came from farther east brought many practices with them. One of them was to plant pumpkins in the corn fields. That meant a good supply of winter vegetables and lots of homemade pumpkin pie. But mechanized farming put an end to that and most pumpkin pies are now maufactured in town. But so is almost everything we use and eat nowadays.

One is supposed always to be for the old times, but it must be admitted that present day pumpkin pies are as good as the old fashioned kind and have the advantage of being available at any time of the year. However, we are still grateful to the colonial housewife who thought them up and they still remind us of the bracing autumn days.

Kennedy's Score On Church-State

WASHINGTON — During the pre-election campaign that put the first Catholic president in the White House, I received a great deal of critical mail from Protestants because I claimed that John F. Kennedy, if elected, would observe the constitutional separation of church and state. I said at that time, however, if he did not, I would report it.

Here is a report on two phases of the church and state issue where the first Catholic president has taken important and significent positions regarding his own church.

The first is in regard to South Viet Nam where he has opposed one powerful group inside his church. The other is in regard to federal aid to Catholic colleges where he has sided with his church.

Very little has leaked out about the manner in which the United States got so heavily involved in Viet Nam on the side of the unpopular minority Diem family. But the man who had most to do with it was Cardinal Spellman of New York who has made four pilgrimages to South Viet Nam where he was welcomed as a saviour. He was instrumental in persuading the Eisenhower administration to send heavy relief funds and later military forces to that country.

On Spellman's first trip around Christmas 1955, he made headlines with a $100,000 gift to Catholic refugees who had fled from the communist north to the south. But simultaneously, the Eisenhower administration gave a Christmas gift of $20,571,428 of U.S. aid and food to these refugees, most of them Catholic.

Ever since then, Cardinal Spellman's drive has been to bolster the Catholic minority in a country which is about 10 per cent Catholic and over 40 per cent Buddhist. He has been the No. 1 supporter of the unpopular Diem family. When Diem's brother, archbishop Ngo-Dinh-Thuc was refused an audience with the Pope last summer, it was considered significant that he came immediately to New York to call on Cardinal Spellman. It was on the cardinal that Mme. Nhu also paid her first call when she arrived in the United States.

It should be noted that the Vatican disagreed with Spellman on Viet Nam, as it has on many things. Not only did Pope Paul refuse to receive Diem's brother, the archbishop, but last summer during the climax of the anti-Buddhist persecution, Paul sent a message to Saigon asking "mutual respect for legitimate liberties."

President Kennedy, though a little slow in coming to grips with the Vietnamese crisis, finally lined up against Spellman and the Catholic ruling family. He recognized that the Catholic rulers had made themselves so unpopular that there could be no effective opposition to communism as long as they were in power.

The White House did not conspire to throw out the Diem family. What it did do was to withdraw U.S. payments of $250,000 per quarter to the special forces which had kept Diem in office. This was the U.S.-armed-and-equipped terrorist outfit, paid by all the U.S. tax-payers, which raided the Buddhist temples last August and dragged worshippers off to jails. When their pay was cut off by our Central Intelligence Agency, it was the tip-off that the U.S. policy had changed and meant that the downfall of Diem was inevitable.

Poker Now A Lost Art; Women Ruined The Game

NEW YORK — Poker is dead; long live deuces, trays and one-eyed jacks wild!

I don't understand it, but the experts say that my sex killed poker as sure as a flush beats a straight (and I don't understand that, either).

It seems that women are blamed for introducing "gimmicks" to the game. A gimmick is considered to be any embellishment or variation from the purish five-card-draw version.

The theory of the experts is that the moment some woman got the bright idea of adding a couple more cards to the hand, as in seven-card stud, or of making any of them "wild" — the game began to deteriorate.

The poker of 1963 has gone to the point where it bears about as much resemblance to "the great old American game of poker" as a Lionel train bears to the New York Central RR.

"It all happened in the 20th century," writes John Lukacs (in "Horizon"). First, poker was the victim of the rise of independent women early in the century — notoriously bad gamblers, he maintains.

Later, in the war years, the game declined in the hands of servicemen who played it to relieve boredom and make money — rather than as an artful pursuit.

And now, declares Lukacs, it has become the tool of "military strategists who over-analyze it and — in the process — destroy its subtlety and excitement."

Lukacs, a college history professor, goes so far as to say (and this will shock many a churchman) that in losing poker as an art, modern society has also lost its "self-restraint, individualistic American quality.

"The deterioration of poker is a reflection of a decline in the character of Americans."

His theory is that real poker is a class-less sport; a game of and for individual gentlemen.

"Poker's uniqueness," he says, "was in being a game where consequences are controlled not so much by chance or fate as by human beings who decide what will happen. The challenge of a good game of poker without gimmicks is that the player will try, and be able by his skill, to make much of a bad hand. In this respect, poker, well-played, is the game where the individual prevails over chance or fate—where men are free agents."

In the deterioration of poker, then, lies "a reflection of a decline in the character of Americans."

He may have a point there. At any rate, I'm going to give it a lot of thought before I ever again demand sixes wild.

JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Molner: Our six-month-old baby has eczema. She is strictly on a diet, prescribed by our doctor, but at least once a day her body flames up in red spots. The itching is terrible and she is scratched all over.—B.C.

Molner

Eczema is not unusual in babies, and frequently appears at about three months.

This annoying skin rash is generally a form of allergy. If both parents had some sort of allergy, perhaps mild enough so that neither recognized it as such, the baby can have an intense tendency in that direction.

The likeliest "trigger" for the attacks is some food, although it may be something that is touched: wool, soaps, ordinary dust, the lacquer finish on the crib, etc.

As for foods, milk and cereals should be suspected first. Soybean milk, or even goat's milk can be substituted for cow's milk. Oat cereals can be used instead of the usual wheat cereals.

Fruit or vegetable (in puree form) may be the cause. Still a bit later babies begin getting eggs in one form or another, or strained meats. These, too, can be culprits.

I agree that it's not easy for parents or doctor to put a finger on the offending food (if it is a food allergy) right off. Sometimes skin tests help solve the mystery.

In time, youngsters usually outgrow eczema, but it is such a trying thing, both for babies and parents, that the sooner it is cured, the better. And usually it can be.

The scratching should be controlled, or limited, because the scratches admit miscellaneous transient infections which accentuate the whole problem. Bland anti-itching lotions or creams reduce irritation, and mittens or bandages on the hands prevent clawing.

Eczema isn't a disease that's inherited. What is inherited is allergy — and the allergy causes rash and itching, and the rash is "eczema."

Dear Dr. Molner: Almost three years ago I had a breast removed. I have been X-rayed several times and the doctor says everything is clear. My arm is still swollen, and around the shoulder, and the breast bones are so stiff that I suffer at times. I have taken so many pain pills that my stomach is ruined. What can be done to relieve this tightness and hurting?—MRS. H.S.

This sort of condition can, indeed, occur after extensive breast surgery. The lymphatic glands in the armpit are disturbed. Scar tissue forms and causes the arm to swell.

In addition, this same condition tends to act as a sort of natural "splint" on the shoulder, making it painful and stiff.

Physiotherapy can help appreciably. I mean a combination of things, not a single procedure.

Massage; assisted motion of the joint; heat; along sleeve on the arm; appropriate exercise—all of these or some of them can help.

The process, I admit, is tedious, but it is frequently successful.

A "rehabilitation institute" or some similar facility in your community will provide this kind of therapy.

Dear Dr. Molner: My three-year-old granddaughter recently had shingles. I have never heard of it occurring in a child before. Is there anything we can do to correct the cause? She responded well to treatment.—MRS. K.C.

Shingles can occasionally occur in children. The cause is the same as in adults. It is a virus similar to chickenpox. The vesicles or "spots" follow the course of a nerve instead of being scattered indiscriminately as in chickenpox.

Fortunately, shingles is much milder and less painful in children. One attack usually provides immunity.

Dear Dr. Molner: One eyelid hangs much lower than the other. What can I do to have it corrected?—C.R.

Drooping of one eyelid is frequently traced to a disturbance of the nerve controlling it. Infection and various toxic factors are often the causes. If treatment for such troubles does not succeed, there are operations for raising the lid. An eye specialist can decide the best course.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Molner: Concerning hepatitis, do serum shots make a person immune? Why does it take so long to cure hepatitis? If it's contagious, how does it spread?—MRS. M.F.

First, there is no serum or vaccine that can give permanent immunity. Gamma globulin will provide a few months of immunity.

Second, the time required for a cure depends on the severity of the individual case. This varies widely because there is no specific cure. All we can do is make conditions as easy as possible for the liver to "cure itself." The liver has remarkable power to do this.

Third, contact with body secretions appears to be the major means of contagion, particularly the stool. Avoid kissing. Be sanitarily careful in handling soiled clothing, bedding, body wastes.

Dr. Molner welcomes all mail from his readers, but because of the great volume received daily he is unable to answer individual letters. Dr. Molner uses readers letters in his column whenever possible.

Grandpa Says

Guide Rock, Neb.

I see by the papers that the Farm Bureau is planning to come out again for raising the REA interest rates.

Grandpa says this ain't the first time them boys been for the farmer kickin' himself in the seat of the pants. He says he read that them Farm Bureau boys met with some of the big power companies once, and then came out for raisin' the REA interest rates even higher than the power boys wanted them.

Grandpa says he heard one of them Farm Bureau boys talk for half an hour once about "progressin' backwards" and this REA deal sounds like some more of their "reversive" progress philosophy to him. He says the only thing that bothers him is that he ain't ever heard of anyone but cowards and weaklings backin' and even they didn't try to pass it off as progress.

Grandpa says if you think that the Farm Bureau won't talk some of them farmers into raising their own light bills and takin' less at the same time, you better think again on it, on account of, for every string of bologna, there is a crack-pot somewhere to put it in.

Missouri Plan

Lincoln, Neb.

The public well may ask what is to be gained by divorcing the Nebraska State Bar Association from the Supreme Court and making it possible for a lawyer to practice law without being a member of the bar association. The answer to this is the same as the answer to the "right to work" laws. They make it impossible for a union ever to be in complete control of a situation. There are always those who do not seek union assistance to work. Where there are "closed" shops, it leads to a gangster element sometimes worming its way into union offices.

Of course this approach is heretical thinking, according to many lawyers. By divorcement from the Supreme Court, they will no longer be able to say, "We are officers of the court and entitled to a certain amount of immunity." Citizens who are bilked by dishonest lawyers can still have their redress against them in the ordinary way of criminal law by presenting their grievance in the form of a complaint to the county attorney and having him prosecute the malefactor.

Further, if the bar association divorces itself from the Supreme Court and its offices in the Statehouse, perhaps the voters will begin to realize that the "Missouri Plan" was not all they thought it was when they changed the constitution to allow this method of selection of judges. Certainly there will be no more primaries where men of different caliber are pitted against each other for the position. That is over. A small group will select the judge and that is a throwback to undemocratic days.

If all the implications of the "Missouri Plan" had been properly understood, it is doubtful whether it would have carried.

This is not a question that concerns lawyers only. It is in the public interest and concerns all voters. It is a simple question. In 1937 the Supreme Court simply acted without authority when it created the Nebraska Bar Association. To date not one member has stepped forward to produce the questioned authority.

Work To Do

Lincoln, Neb.

There is a great cry of unemployment throughout the land, and the teenagers pathetically bemoan the fact that it is next to impossible for them to find jobs. There is plenty to be done, if anyone is not afraid of hard work.

Just try to find a man or boy to mow a lawn or rake or spade a garden or prune trees or help with storm windows or scoop snow. All these things come under the heading of physical labor and the thought of a few blisters or putting the muscles into play is too much, I guess.

Part of the trouble with this country is that the era of the easy buck has spoiled too many people, and the fine old theory of giving an honest day's work for a day's pay has gone with the wind.

Foreign Aid

Lincoln, Neb.

Foreign aid has become the whipping boy and it is our own fault.

A great deal of it actually has been spent in this country and exported in the form of machine tools and packaged industries. These are now turning out products in competition with our industry which is losing some of its world market. It is the old story of extending aid from the top down and of favoring certain segments of our economy.

Our best aid export has always been our surplus food. That's something that goes into people's stomachs and not into a few people's pockets. A more abundant diet is a prime requirement. It breeds contentment and releases the individual for more hours of useful work. If in a backward country a hungry man has to spend most of his time finding half enough to eat he has no time or energy left to improve his housing and help his country rise. Moreover food doesn't come back in the market to hurt us.

Exporting food would cost us less and help our economy more. But heavy influences playing on Washington distorts our efforts and in the end brings us trouble.

Mother, 83, Is Fine; Heir Will Have To Wait

By ROBERT PETERSON

Some parents are certainly gallant in their love for their offspring. A fellow told me the other day that he corresponds regularly with his 83-year-old mother in St. Louis. Apparently he's as dutiful a son as she is a doting mother.

He showed me a paragraph in a recent letter from her which said, "I'm really a little embarrased about continuing to live on my heir's money. Knowing how much fun you'll have with it when I'm gone, I think it's inconsiderate of me to report that I'm feeling marvelous and that you, poor dear, may have to wait years."

Those of us dating back to the early years of the century can recall those little red schoolhouses which dotted rural and suburban communities.

Few of these exist anymore, but if Alpheus and Augusta Perry, Route 16, Albany, N.H., have their way, the little red schoolhouse will be revived in communities everywhere and serve as shops for the display and sale of handicrafts made by folks past 60.

They say they got the idea when an abandoned schoolhouse on a busy road near their town was up for sale. They decided to buy it for purely sentimental reasons. They painted it red and put up a sign saying, "Golden Age Shop."

Then they invited folks past 60 from all over the country to send them their arts and handicrafts for display and sale, with the shop taking a 20% commission.

The shop is now five years old and has grown from an original group of nine local consignors, to 278 consignors from just about every state.

"We'll be glad," say the Perrys, "to share our knowledge and experience with anyone who might be interested. It's our wish to see little red schoolhouses dotting the country from coast to coast as outlets for the handiwork of our elder citizens." Great idea.

Only Compromise Can Avert Power Crisis—Callan

State Power Review Board Chairman Clair Callan of Odell said Wednesday Nebraska may be headed for another power crisis after 1966 unless a compromise plan on future supply needs is reached between power agencies.

Callan's statement was prompted by a disclosure that the Nebraska Public Power System (NPPS) has notified its numerous customers equity month will occur in August, 1966.

Equity month is when the availability of power meets the demand of NPPS customers. Additional electricity will have to be supplied after this month in order to meet load demands.

Contracts between NPPS and its customers require disclosure of such a plan three years prior to the time when supply will be exhausted by demand. Customers then have 90 days to declare what sources they will seek additional power needs from.

Thus, Callan said, the deadline for notification is Monday. No reply means the customers will obtain power elsewhere.

Callan feels this poses a crisis if most customers choose to seek their supplies elsewhere since the NPPS, he feels, is not required to wheel power above equity needs over their transmission grid.

Callan said the problem can only be solved through compromise "because the Review Board will never condone construction of a second (statewide) grid system to meet additional needs."

For this reason, Callan said the board will meet in Kearney, Neb., next Wednesday with key power officials to discuss the problem.

Aside from the Federal Bureau of Reclamation, NPPS is the only statewide wholesale power supplier that serves both the rurals and some cities, Callan noted. But any bureau power contracted for would have to be wheeled over NPPS transmission lines.

Another alternative would be construction of additional generation plants in the state.

Rural districts have been at odds of late with NPPS and have asserted they will supply their own electrical needs after equity month. They are currently studying five alternatives:

—Additional bureau power, which might require construction of new transmission facilities.

—New generation from the Basin Electric Cooperative Plant in North Dakota.

—Construction of additional units at the Canaday Steam Plant near Lexington or the Sheldon Station near Hallam.

—Construction of a new generation plant.

On another matter, the board met with two rural electrification administration (RCA) officials, L. A. Kirkbride, field engineer from Lincoln, and E. A. Loetterle, chief engineer from Washington, concerning REA's apprehensive of transfer of mortgaged lines in determining service area agreements among districts.

Loetterle said the REA is concerned since it is faced with loaning funds to build lines which may be subject to transfer to another district.

The board requested Loetterle to have the REA furnish a letter setting forth what assurance they need to protect their loans and the board agreed it will enact a resolution to this affect.

Rural districts have been at odds of late with NPPS and have asserted they will supply their own electrical needs after equity month. They are currently studying five alternatives:

—Additional bureau power, which might require construction of new transmission facilities.

—New generation from the Basin Electric Cooperative Plant in North Dakota.

—Construction of additional units at the Canaday Steam Plant near Lexington or the Sheldon Station near Hallam.

—Construction of a new generation plant.

On another matter, the board met with two rural electrification administration (RCA) officials, L. A. Kirkbride, field engineer from Lincoln, and E. A. Loetterle, chief engineer from Washington, concerning REA's apprehensive of transfer of mortgaged lines in determining service area agreements among districts.

Loetterle said the REA is concerned since it is faced with loaning funds to build lines which may be subject to transfer to another district.

The board requested Loetterle to have the REA furnish a letter setting forth what assurance they need to protect their loans and the board agreed it will enact a resolution to this affect.

Omahans Object, But ETV Appointees Okayed

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature's Committee on Committees Wednesday recommended confirmation of State Educational Television Commission members over the objections of Omaha senators.

Three Omahans, Sens. Sam Klaver, George Syas and William Skarda, are members of the 13-member committee.

A motion to withhold confirmation failed on a 4-8 executive session vote. A recommendation of confirmation was then approved on separate 9-0 votes.

Klaver told commission members that the Legislature passed the educational television act with the understanding that "it would be tried out in Lincoln and Omaha first, then go to the rest of the state."

Warning

Klaver warned: "If Douglas County does not receive the consideration promised to us, then the next Legislature will hear about it. What one session can do, another can undo."

But Sen. Ross Rasmussen of Hooper, chairman of the Education Committee which handled the two ETV bills during the regular session, disagreed.

"There were no implied promises," he declared. "The ETV Commission should not be bound by anything but what is in the bill."

The act provides for creation of a statewide ETV network, with at least two originating broadcast facilities, one of which is to be located in Omaha.

Priorities of construction are left to the commission.

"Why put pressure on these people?" asked Sen. Arnold Ruhnke of Plymouth.

"I'm not," Klaver said.

"That's a matter of opinion," Ruhnke replied.

Syas told newsmen following the meeting that the 9-member commission is "overloaded" with Lincolnites. Five members are from Lincoln, but four serve in a statewide capacity.

Asked if he believed Omaha should receive top priority in development of the network, Syas said: "I'm not going to say one way or the other. But Omaha should be one of the first priorities."

Recommended for confirmation were Watkins, Mrs. Frank, Joseph Maresh of Dodge, Robert Minnick of Alliance, Dr. Theron Maxson of Hastings and J. Arthur Danielson of Lincoln.

Three other members serve by virtue of their positions: Dr. Floyd Miller, state education commissioner; Dr. Clifford M. Hardin, chancellor of the University of Nebraska, and Dr. Freeman Decker, coordinator of the State Normal Board.

Watkins is a representative of the Nebraska Council for Educational Television, Maxson is a representative of private educational institutions, and the other four members represent school district classes.

Normal Board, Budgeters Meet On Kearney Plans

The Budget Committee conferred with members of the State Normal Board Wednesday over construction of a $1,750,000 science building at Kearney State College.

The 1963 Legislature appropriated $500,000 for construction of at least one unit of the building. Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, Budget Committee chairman, said the Normal Board is thinking of constructing the shell of the building now and waiting for additional funds from the 1965 Legislature.

Marvel emphasized the meeting was an informational one and he informed the board that the committee can do nothing now to commit the next Legislature to additional funds.

ETV Priorities Are Determined

communities," the subcommittee reported.

It also noted that nine colleges and universities (possibly 11) would be reached by this coverage, adding that approximately 55% of all students and adults of the state would be found in this viewing area.

The coverage Channel 12 will provide for the Omaha area was hotly disputed by Omaha School Superintendent Dr. Paul Miller who contended the reception will be too poor to be of practical use.

An engineering consultant to the Omaha schools, Howard Head, also testified that topography of the Omaha area would prevent good reception from a transmitter located at Mead.

Only a transmitter located near the heart of Omaha could assure good coverage to lowlying areas of the city, he said.

In granting second priority to Channel 3 at Lexington, the subcommittee noted that central Nebraska schools have worked for a permanent instructional television service for more than two years.

It was also noted that the second largest number of smaller enrollment schools exists in the area which would be served by the Lexington transmitter.

Commission members stated emphatically they believe Channel 15 at Omaha should be activated, but the question revolved around whether its early implementation would not be duplicating services to Omaha and leaving the western end of the state uncovered.

McBride said applications to build the transmitter at Mead will be forwarded to the Federal Communication Commission and U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare after being approved by NU.

HEW will be asked to provide matching funds for tower.

McBride estimated the $600,000 granted ETV in state funds by the 1963 Legislature would cover the costs of the Mead and Lexington projects, and probably the Omaha University and Mead hookup which he guessed would cost in the neighborhood of $50,000.

communities," the subcommittee reported.

It also noted that nine colleges and universities (possibly 11) would be reached by this coverage, adding that approximately 55% of all students and adults of the state would be found in this viewing area.

The coverage Channel 12 will provide for the Omaha area was hotly disputed by Omaha School Superintendent Dr. Paul Miller who contended the reception will be too poor to be of practical use.

An engineering consultant to the Omaha schools, Howard Head, also testified that topography of the Omaha area would prevent good reception from a transmitter located at Mead.

Only a transmitter located near the heart of Omaha could assure good coverage to low-lying areas of the city, he said.

In granting second priority to Channel 3 at Lexington, the subcommittee noted that central Nebraska schools have worked for a permanent instructional television service for more than two years.

It was also noted that the second largest number of smaller enrollment schools exists in the area which would be served by the Lexington transmitter.

Commission members stated emphatically they believe Channel 16 at Omaha should be activated, but the question revolved around whether its early implementation would not be duplicating services to Omaha and leaving the western end of the state uncovered.

McBride said applications to build the transmitter at Mead will be forwarded to the Federal Communication Commission and U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare after being approved by NU.

HEW will be asked to provide matching funds for tower.

McBride estimated the $600,000 granted ETV in state funds by the 1963 Legislature would cover the costs of the Mead and Lexington projects, and probably the Omaha University and Mead hookup which he guessed would cost in the neighborhood of $50,000.

Denton Salt-Wahoo Dam Site Changed

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

Denton—Land owners near here attended a land acquisition hearing Wednesday evening for dam No. 10 in the Salt-Wahoo program.

The site now considered most practical by the corps of engineers is nearly two miles upstream from the original site, placing it primarily in sections 19 and 30 of Yankee Hill township or 2½ miles east of Denton. Additional land will be secured in sections 24, 25 and 31.

Dam 10, scheduled for construction in 1965, was estimated by Corps of Engineers spokesmen to have a permanent 250 acre pool with 900 acres to be acquired for the dam and adjoining parkland for Game Commission development.

Reasons

Reasons given for the change in site included the necessity for moving the paved road between Lincoln and Denton, expensive pipeline in the path of the structure, and an Air Force navigational facility that would have been covered at the original site, according to Norman Gau of Omaha, corps planning engineer.

Willard Barbee of the Game Commission told those attending the hearing that more than 1,800 acres of public land will be developed surrounding the first six dams constructed in the program.

Development plans for dam 14 west of Emerald, the largest of the corps structures, has progressed to where all but several tracts of land have been secured, according to progress reports.

Hal Schroeder, general manager for Salt-Wahoo, told landowners and farmers that future plans for small watershed structures in the five-county Salt-Wahoo area could reach 150 dams.

Presently 25 are under construction or planned in the Upper Salt Pilot Project and 25 in the northwestern part of Lancaster, Seward and Butler counties.

The main consideration voiced by landowners involved in dam No. 10 was that the corps land department take into consideration the close proximity of their land to Lincoln in establishing value.

Atom Meet Set

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General U Thant's seven-member scientific advisory committee set next Aug. 31-Sept. 9 in Geneva as the time and place for the third international conference on the peaceful uses of atomic energy.

Human Relations Council Preparing Policy Statement

The Mayor's Council on Human Relations hopes to have a statement of purpose ready for adoption at its regular Nov. 19 meeting.

The council Wednesday discussed a preliminary draft, but took no action.

The group also voted to participate in the Freedom Fair, scheduled for March 31 to promote freedom and justice for all citizens.

Other participating sponsors include church groups, ministerial associations, and community betterment organizations.

Base-Community Relations Talked At Joint Session

In connection with Military Recognition Week, representatives of various city organizations and agencies met Wednesday with Lincoln Air Force Base recreation personnel to discuss espansion of the base-community relationship.

Bob Dula, LAFB recreation director, expressed appreciation to the various community groups which provide recreational activities for military men and women.

He cited the Sunday cookie call for the air base through various Lincoln church groups as an outstanding program for which Lincoln is recognized throughout the world.

Norma Carpenter reported success in a plea to various groups in Lincoln for tickets and admissions to activities for this week and the month of November.

Nik Hasn't Given Up Moon Plans

Moscow (AP) — Premier Khrushchev denied Wednesday the impression of a U.S. businessman that the Soviet Union had given up plans to put a man on the moon.

Kendrick R. Wilson Jr., chairman of the board of the Avco Corp., who was one of 20 Americans visiting the Kremlin, asked the Russian leader:

"Why have you given up the idea of going to the moon? Was it for economic reasons?"

Khrushchev disclaimed any such thought.

"We have never said we are giving up our lunar project," he said. "You're the ones who said that.

"As for economic difficulties, you keep on expecting us to give up our (moon program. Well, gentlemen, I say give up such hopes once and for all and just throw them away.

Economy 'Excellent'

"The economic situation within our country is excellent today . . . and in the future it will be still better."

The exchange was a sequel to publication by the government newspaper Izvestia on Oct. 26 of a statement by Khrushchev that the Soviet Union was not racing to be first to land a man on the moon.

This was subject to various interpretations in the West, although Khrushchev made clear that Russian scientists were pursuing research for a lunar landing. As quoted by Izvestia, he said:

"At the present time we are not planning flights of cosmonauts to the moon. Soviet scientists are working on this problem . . . I have read reports that the Americans want to land a man on the moon by 1970. Well, we wish them success . . . We will study their experience."

The American visitors asked Khrushchev how long it will take the Soviet Union to achieve a rendezvous in space.

Sees Possibility

"We have no calendar program, no definite date for a rendezvous in space," he said. "Certainly this latest satellite, this maneuverable satellite (Polyot 1, launched last Friday), indicates that we can contemplate the possibility of that.

"I can't say when this is slated to happen because I did not consult with our scientists and engineers who are in charge of that project to get a definite program."

Khrushchev did say the Soviet Union is building a transport plane to fly faster than sound.

"I can say that we are designing and building a supersonic plane," he said. "I can't give you the details because I don't remember technical data on that plane."

City Officials To DiscussDowntown Plan In Chicago

Mayor Dean Petersen and other city officials are to confer Thursday with Barton-Aschman & Associates in Chicago on Lincoln's downtown development plan.

Accompanying the mayor will be Planning Director Douglas Brogden, City Engineer Carl Fisher and Traffic Engineer Robert Holsinger.

The consulting firm, specializing in downtown planning and traffic, developed a Downtown Plan for Lincoln in 1961.

Features of the plan were location of a City-County Building at 15th and O, an O Street mall, and one-way traffic pairs on the edge of the central business district.

Features of the Barton-Aschman study are incorporated in the 1980 Comprehensive Plan.

Coordination Urged

Paris (AP) — A group of Allied legislators urged the Western powers to coordinate their nuclear strategy on a worldwide basis.

Non-Government Counsel To Oversee Baker Probe

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Rules Committee agreed Wednesday to hire a non-government chief counsel to oversee its Bobby Baker investigation. It also assured Republicans of a full role in the inquiry into the activities of the former Democratic Senate official.

The decisions were taken at an organizational meeting of the committee which will look into the lucrative outside business activities of Robert G. Baker while he held the $19,600 post as Senate Democratic secretary. Baker resigned Oct. 7 after his wideranging operations came under question.

Rules Committee Chairman B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., said that in obtaining a chief counsel he will recommend "someone not associated with government." He acknowledged that the task of finding a prominent attorney for the job may be difficult.

Jordan also announced that the committee of six Democrats and three Republicans reached "complete understanding" on the rights of the GOP members in the investigation.

The Republicans will be empowered to propose witnesses and initiate investigative leads. The three minority members also were authorized to designate an associate counsel who would have access to all information obtained by the chief counsel.

Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., senior GOP member of the committee, declared himself satisfied with the arrangements.

Jordan and Curtis told newsmen after the closed-door meeting that they had no information to bear out a published report that the committee will be asked to look into the death of Alfred S. Novak, a former partner of Baker's in a swank seaside motel near Ocean City, Md. Novak died on March 3, 1962, shortly after being found unconscious in the garage of his home.

No Sex Talk

Jordan also said there was no discussion Wednesday of any details of Baker's business activities nor of any suggested sex angles to the case.

The latter center around Mrs. Ellen Rometsch, a 27-year-old German beauty whose soldier-husband was once stationed here. The German Embassy subsequently sent the Rometsches home when her high living and alleged connections with unidentified Washington officials came under FBI scrutiny.

Jordan said that the investigative staff under the supervision of newly hired William E. Meehan, a retired FBI agent, will begin its work immediately.

However, the chairman said that no witnesses would be heard by the committee until after a chief counsel has been obtained and acquainted with details of the case.

City Promotion Council Chooses Murphy President

Joe Murphy of S. S. Kresge Company was elected president of the Lincoln Promotion Council Wednesday. He succeeds Bob Magee of Magee's.

Murphy

Sam Haupt of Miller and Paine succeeds Murphy as vice president and Sid Anderson of Latsch Brothers will continue as treasurer.

The council is composed of Lincoln merchants promoting the city as a retail center.

During the past year the council broadened its program to include merchants throughout the city for Capital City Days. Climax of 1963 promotions will be a Christmas parade Dec. 2.

This was subject to various interpretations in the West, although Khrushchev made clear that Russian scientists were pursuing research for a lunar landing. As quoted by Izvestia, he said:

"At the present time we are not planning flights of cosmonauts to the moon. Soviet scientists are working on this problem . . . I have read reports that the Americans want to land a man on the moon by 1970. Well, we wish them success . . . We will study their experience."

The American visitors asked Khrushchev how long it will take the Soviet Union to achieve a rendezvous in space.

Sees Possibility

"We have no calendar program, no definite date for a rendezvous in space," he said. "Certainly this latest satellite, this maneuverable satellite (Polyot 1, launched last Friday), indicates that we can contemplate the possibility of that.

"I can't say when this is slated to happen because I did not consult with our scientists and engineers who are in charge of that project to get a definite program."

Khrushchev did say the Soviet Union is building a transport plane to fly faster than sound.

"I can say that we are designing and building a supersonic plane." he said. "I can't give you the details because I don't remember technical data on that plane."

City Officials To DiscussDowntown Plan In Chicago

Mayor Dean Petersen and other city officials are to confer Thursday with Barton-Aschman & Associates in Chicago on Lincoln's downtown development plan.

Accompanying the mayor will be Planning Director Douglas Brogden, City Engineer Carl Fisher and Traffic Engineer Robert Holsinger.

The consulting firm, specializing in downtown planning and traffic, developed a Downtown Plan for Lincoln in 1961.

Features of the plan were location of a City-County Building at 15th and O, an O Street mall, and one-way traffic pairs on the edge of the central business district.

Features of the Barton-Aschman study are incorporated in the 1980 Comprehensive Plan.

Coordination Urged

Non-Government Counsel To Oversee Baker Probe

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Rules Committee agreed Wednesday to hire a non-government chief counsel to oversee its Bobby Baker investigation. It also assured Republicans of a full role in the inquiry into the activities of the former Democratic Senate official.

The decisions were taken at an organizational meeting of the committee which will look into the lucrative outside business activities of Robert G. Baker while he held the $19,600 post as Senate Democratic secretary. Baker resigned Oct. 7 after his wideranging operations came under question.

Rules Committee Chairman B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., said that in obtaining a chief counsel he will recommend "someone not associated with government." He acknowledged that the task of finding a prominent attorney for the job may be difficult.

Jordan also announced that the committee of six Democrats and three Republicans reached "complete understanding" on the rights of the GOP members in the investigation.

The Republicans will be empowered to propose witnesses and initiate investigative leads. The three minority members also were authorized to designate an associate counsel who would have access to all information obtained by the chief counsel.

Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., senior GOP member of the committee, declared himself satisfied with the arrangements.

Jordan and Curtis told newsmen after the closed-door meeting that they had no information to bear out a published report that the committee will be asked to look into the death of Alfred S. Novak, a former partner of Baker's in a swank seaside motel near Ocean City, Md. Novak died on March 3, 1962, shortly after being found unconscious in the garage of his home.

No Sex Talk

Jordan also said there was no discussion Wednesday of any details of Baker's business activities nor of any suggested sex angles to the case.

The latter center around Mrs. Ellen Rometsch, a 27-year-old German beauty whose soldier-husband was once stationed here. The German Embassy subsequently sent the Rometsches home when her high living and alleged connections with unidentified Washington officials came under FBI scrutiny.

Jordan said that the investigative staff under the supervision of newly hired William E. Meehan, a retired FBI agent, will begin its work immediately.

However, the chairman said that no witnesses would be heard by the committee until after a chief counsel has been obtained and acquainted with details of the case.

City Promotion Council Chooses Murphy President

Joe Murphy of S. S. Kresge Company was elected president of the Lincoln Promotion Council Wednesday. He succeeds Bob Magee of Magee's.

Murphy

Sam Haupt of Miller and Paine succeeds Murphy as vice president and Sid Anderson of Latsch Brothers will continue as treasurer.

The council is composed of Lincoln merchants promoting the city as a retail center.

During the past year the council broadened its program to include merchants throughout the city for Capital City Days. Climax of 1963 promotions will be a Christmas parade Dec. 2.

New Personnel Chief Sought

. . . MAYOR HOPES TO FILL SPOT BEFORE FEB. 1

Mayor Dean Petersen said Wednesday he hopes to appoint a new city personnel director prior to the Feb. 1 retirement of Ray Ramsay.

The mayor said he wanted the new director to be able to work with Ramsay before he retires and to be involved in the $14,000 city personnel and job classification study.

He said the personnel department would be a key office under his administration and he hopes to get a job training program started.

In a talk before the Lincoln Chapter of the National Office Managers Association, the mayor said that more than 25% of the city employes are over 65.

He said this is one of the most severe problems facing city government. He called the low salaries of upper echelon people in City Hall another "real" problem.

"We have a number of people who could move to other cities at twice the salary they're getting here," he said.

Crayons Used To Mark First Methodist Church

The Rev. Leonard S. Clark reported to police Wednesday that someone wrote with crayons on the front of the First Methodist Church at 50th and St. Paul.

He said he could not estimate the cost of cleaning the crayon marks from the church.

Train Hits, Kills Holdrege Man, 77

Holdrege (UPI)—Verne Potter, 77, of Holdrege was killed Wednesday night in a pedestrian - train accident.

Authorities said he was struck by a westbound Burlington freight near the Holdrege depot.

Insurance Agents Praise Senators For Driver's Ed

The Legislature was praised Wednesday by the Nebraska Association of Insurance Agents holding their 56th annual state convention.

The senators were commended by the association for passing the driver education bill in the regular session this year.

The association said driver education is "one of the most important, if not the most important, single factor in traffic safety."

Singled out for special praise were Gov. Morrison, Sen. Don Thompson of McCook, and Mrs. Helen Greene of Greenwood, all of whom worked in support of the driver training measure.

An estimated 500 independent insurance agents are attending the convention.

Formosan Town's Telephones Cut Off

Taipei, Formosa (AP) — The telephone of Mayor Lin Fan-wong of the north port of Keelung was cut off Wednesday. So were 31 of the other 37 telephones used by the municipal government.

The telephone bureau in Taipei said the telephones will stay off until the city government pays up overdue bills of $3,825. The bureau reported it had left five telephones open for emergencies.

Along with tail fins and the outside barbecue, the absolute most in status symbols these days is a British-made razor blade.

If you know somebody who knows somebody, etc., you can sometimes connect with a package of these rare items. Become the man in your block to be hated by everybody.

☆ ☆ ☆

Three packages of the Wilkinson Super-Sword blades arrived by mail yesterday from England We put them in the safe immediately.

"They are becoming rather difficult to find," writes my correspondent. "However, I shall be on the lookout and forward some whenever they appear."

As I get it, the English are pinched for blades. Due to the demands of the American status market.

Thus at last the War of 1812, the burning of Washington, D.C. and the flight of Dolly Madison with the President's papers have been revenged.

He who lives by the sword shall be undone by the Super-Sword.

The Wilkinson Super-Sword blade was put out about a year ago by Wilkinson Sword, Ltd., a British firm 190 years old

The gimmick appears to be that the blade is made of stainless steel. In this way it does not lose its edge after one passage through the beard

This was discovered by American shavers who were visiting England. I found them myself quite by accident while living in Chelsea.

I must have used that first blade 20 times. I thought there was something wrong with me.

The same thing, of course, happened to others. And a word-of-mouth thing started which snowballed until now I see cutlery stores have to put up signs: "No Wilkinson Blades expected until further notice"

☆ ☆ ☆

You would think Wilkinson would be delighted. Would move fearlessly into the field where Gillette Company sells seven of every 10 blades used in America.

Not so. The British company is somewhat unhappy.

They brought out the blades primarily as a teaser for garden tools which is their main item of manufacture

They do not intend to increase production nor to advertise.

They wish people didn't want Wilkinson blades.

"We don't think it's a good idea to advertise something that people cannot readily obtain," said a company officer. "It leaves a nasty taste."

☆ ☆ ☆

This sort of attitude is so much wind-in-the-willows to the American shaver, staring at his soapy face in the steamy mirror.

If the man down the street has a Wilkinson, he will have a Wilkinson, too.

This has set up an interesting black market in blades and a new irritant for the old stomach lining.

We can report that the most likely spot to find these blades is at a nursery supply company. A company that furnishes professional garden tools.

One such place I got a line on is in Walnut Creek, California.

Do they shave with them? I should say not. The nursery company sells the blades (with a handy holder) to people who use them to prune fruit trees!

☆ ☆ ☆

Naturally, the American makers have come up with their stainless steel, long lasting blades. You must have seen the Personna ads on TV?

Schick is in the market with a blade. And even giant Gillette, king of the morning bathroom, is about to go into the field. Fortune magazine did an exhaustive study of this. They decided Gillette could stand the blow of selling a blade that did not buckle after one trip through the briar patch.

However, these blades are not discoveries. They are not British. And if built-in obsolescence has been built out, you can't build in the status.

Only 3 More Days to Enter Simon's Birthday Party Sweepstakes

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

Along with tail fins and the outside barbecue, the absolute most in status symbols these days is a British-made razor blade.

If you know somebody who knows somebody, etc., you can sometimes connect with a package of these rare items. Become the man in your block to be hated by everybody.

☆ ☆ ☆

Three packages of the Wilkinson Super-Sword blades arrived by mail yesterday from England. We put them in the safe immediately.

"They are becoming rather difficult to find," writes my correspondent. "However, I shall be on the lookout and forward some whenever they appear."

As I get it, the English are pinched for blades. Due to the demands of the American status market.

Thus at last the War of 1812, the burning of Washington, D.C. and the flight of Dolly Madison with the President's papers have been revenged.

He who lives by the sword shall be undone by the Super-Sword.

☆ ☆ ☆

The Wilkinson Super-Sword blade was put out about a year ago by Wilkinson Sword, Ltd., a British firm 190 years old.

The gimmick appears to be that the blade is made of stainless steel. In this way it does not lose its edge after one passage through the beard.

☆ ☆ ☆

This was discovered by American shavers who were visiting England. I found them myself quite by accident while living in Chelsea.

I must have used that first blade 20 times. I thought there was something wrong with me.

The same thing, of course, happened to others. And a word-of-mouth thing started which snowballed until now I see cutlery stores have to put up signs: "No Wilkinson Blades expected until further notice."

☆ ☆ ☆

You would think Wilkinson would be delighted. Would move fearlessly into the field where Gillette Company sells seven of every 10 blades used in America.

Not so. The British company is somewhat unhappy.

They brought out the blades primarily as a teaser for garden tools which is their main item of manufacture.

They do not intend to increase production nor to advertise.

They wish people didn't want Wilkinson blades.

"We don't think it's a good idea to advertise something that people cannot readily obtain," said a company officer. "It leaves a nasty taste."

☆ ☆ ☆

This sort of attitude is so much wind-in-the-willows to the American shaver, staring at his soapy face in the steamy mirror.

If the man down the street has a Wilkinson, he will have a Wilkinson, too.

This has set up an interesting black market in blades and a new irritant for the old stomach lining.

We can report that the most likely spot to find these blades is at a nursery supply company. A company that furnishes professional garden tools.

One such place I got a line on is in Walnut Creek, California.

Do they shave with them? I should say not. The nursery company sells the blades (with a handy holder) to people who use them to prune fruit trees!

Naturally, the American makers have come up with their stainless steel, long lasting blades. You must have seen the Persona ads on TV?

Schick is in the market with a blade. And even giant Gillette, king of the morning bathroom, is about to go into the field. Fortune magazine did an exhaustive study of this. They decided Gillette could stand the blow of selling a blade that did not buckle after one trip through the briar patch.

However, these blades are not discoveries. They are not British. And if built-in obsolescence has been built out, you can't build in the status.

Shortage Of Dorm Space At Colleges

A serious shortage of dormitory facilities at Nebraska's four state teachers colleges may result in some students being turned away next fall, Normal Board Co-Ordinator Freeman Decker said Wednesday.

Dr. Decker said a recent survey showed the four schools—Peru, Wayne, Chadron and Kearney—are now running 97% occupancy of present dormitory space, with an estimated 1,013 more students expected to enroll next year, pushing the occupancy figure beyond 100%.

"We will be in serious trouble next fall," Decker said, adding that if the projected enrollment figure is not attained it will be due to some students being rejected because of a lack of residence space.

E. Albin Larson, Normal Board secretary, conducted the space survey. It showed that Chadron State is now running 116.7% dormitory occupancy with 522 students being crammed into a rated bed capacity of 473.

Larson's survey also showed these comparative figures:

—Kearney State has a bed capacity of 1,152, of which 1,146 are occupied or 99%.

—Peru State has a bed capacity of 447, of which 422 are occupied or 94%.

—And Wayne State has a bed capacity of 1,176, of which 1,067 are occupied or 91%.

On the bright side, though, Decker said plans are underway to construct a new 400-bed co educational dormitory on the Kearney campus, a new 130-bed addition to the existing men's dorm at Peru State and a new 300-bed co-educational facility on the Chadron campus.

Decker said no plans have been drafted regarding the Wayne State campus because it is "pretty well fixed."

People in the market for new appliances gain welcome information about brands and prices from the advertising pages of their local newspapers. In addition to benefitting from the millions of dollars worth of national advertising placed every year by manufacturers, they also learn about what thier local dealers are offering, since appliance retailers traditionally invest an average of 7½ out of every 10 advertising dollars in their local newspapers.

NWU Receives Kresge Gift

The Kresge Foundation has presented Nebraska Wesleyan University a $25,000 gift for use on the fine arts-auditorium center.

Kresge's Lincoln store managers John Sommerville and J. W. Murphy presented the check to Pres. Vance D. Rogers.

Bids on the $600,000 building will be taken in January, according to Pres. Rogers.

English Author Will Speak At NWU Friday

Author Dr. Roger Pilkington of England will address a convocation Friday at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

He speaks at 10:00 a.m. in C. C. White auditorium.

Dr. Pilkington earned his Ph.D. at Cambridge with emphasis on genetics.

He was a lecturer in human genetics at the Royal Institute of Public Health in London before becoming a full-time writer.

He currently is general editor of a scientific series for Macmillan and Co., London.

He has written 32 books and numerous articles for scientific journals.

People in the market for new appliances gain welcome information about brands and prices from the advertising pages of their local newspapers. In addition to benefitting from the millions of dollars worth of national advertising placed every year by manufacturers, they also learn about what thier local dealers are offering, since appliance retailers traditionally invest an average of 7½ out of every 10 advertising dollars in their local newspapers.

NWU Receives Kresge Gift

The Kresge Foundation has presented Nebraska Wesleyan University a $25,000 gift for use on the fine arts-auditorium center.

Kresge's Lincoln store managers John Sommerville and J. W. Murphy presented the check to Pres. Vance D. Rogers.

Bids on the $600,000 building will be taken in January, according to Pres. Rogers.

English Author Will Speak At NWU Friday

Author Dr. Roger Pilkington of England will address a convocation Friday at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

He speaks at 10:00 a.m. in C. C. White auditorium.

Dr. Pilkington earned his Ph.D. at Cambridge with emphasis on genetics.

He was a lecturer in human genetics at the Royal Institute of Public Health in London before becoming a full-time writer.

He currently is general editor of a scientific series for Macmillan and Co., London.

He has written 32 books and numerous articles for scientific journals.

Patient Who Got Monkey Kidney Dies

New Orleans (UPI) — A woman patient involved in the first workable transplant of animal kidneys into a human body died shortly after the kidneys failed and were removed, Tulane University surgeons announced Wednesday.

The patient, who was not identified, died Oct. 20, two days after doctors removed the transplanted kidneys, the surgeons said.

The historic operation was performed Oct. 8. Kidneys of a rhesus monkey were transplanted to the patient's body to replace her own, which failed because of chronic infection.

Dr. Bryan McCracken, one of 11 surgeons who performed the operation, said the transplant procedure was not responsible for the patient's death.

OK For 7 Days

He said the animal kidneys functioned satisfactorily for seven days and the patient was totally dependent upon them, but laboragory tests indicated they were failing and they were removed in the interest of the patient.

He blamed the body's "rejection mechanism" for ultimate failure of the transplant. The human body will not tolerate foreign tissue, said Dr. McCracken.

The patient was given special chemicals in an effort to overcome her resistance to the alien kidneys.

After the removal operation, the patient was returned to an artificial kidney that supported her before the transplant. Dr. McCracken said the patient's "terminal kidney illness" was the cause of death.

High Obstacles

"The transplant idea is still in the earliest stages of development and there are substantial obstacles to overcome if the procedure is to become successful," said Dr. McCracken.

"As a result of the information gained in the first renal transplant, new techniques and procedures may be developed which could lead to long-lived transplants of healthy animal organs to replace injured or diseased human organs," he said.

The Tulane University Medical School's laboratories are actively investigating the problems concerned with the rejection mechanism, said Dr. McCracken.

Red Guerrilla Raids On Viet Posts Double

Saigon, Viet Nam (AP)—Communist guerrillas doubled their attacks on strategic hamlets and outposts this week as South Viet Nam's military revolutionary committee began reorganizing its field command structure.

An American spokesman reported Wednesday that the Red Viet Cong began reacting late Sunday to the overthrow of the Diem regime on Saturday morning and by Wednesday had launched dozens of attacks and incidents throughout the country.

A double number of guerrilla-initiated incidents has been reported in this period compared to last week and the figure appears to be rising, the U.S. spokesman said.

Not So Significant

However these guerrilla incidents are being classed as probing to determine reaction at village level to the coup d'etat. The spokesman said that effectiveness of the guerrillas militarily "has not been as significant as could be expected."

The revolutionary group reorganization of field commanders have been appointed and three have been replaced.

From now on elite Special Forces units will be under direct command of corps commanders.

Senior American officers are reported looking with favor on the new command appointments. One officer said, "They are putting some young tigers in command out there and they could make an all-out effort to kill Viet Cong."

Guests Invade The Suburban Areas

PATRICIAN HEIGHTS

With the coming of winter, the sun rises later each day and sets earlier, resulting in longer periods of darkness. We realize that this observation is not world shaking, but it does point out an interesting thing — the art of using the obvious as a subject for conversation.

Examples of this ability are everywhere. When it's rained for two days straight, and your hair is kinked tighter than the knot of Gordon, someone will always say, "Do you have naturally curly hair?"

Or when you trip over your feet, upsetting the lamp and breaking three vases, has anyone ever failed to remark, "My, you're so light on your feet?"

But these are the things that make each day of living a joy. They're dependable.

And another dependable thing is fun at a birthday party. Last Friday was the 10th birthday of Melanie Ann Noel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vance Noel, and it was celebrated via a party after school.

A magazine scavenger hunt and other games kept Melanie's guests entertained, and the ice cream and cake kept everyone's spirits at a high peak. Party-goers were Melanie's school friends, who included Diane Smith, Emily Needham, Karen McDuffee, Kay Tschetter, Lynn Hyde and Terry Styner.

Moving to Patrician Heights recently were Mr. and Mrs. Byron Owens, who are just beginning to learn the names and faces of their new neighbors.

Besides moving vans and candles, there were weekend guests in Patrician Heights. Visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Maaske were Mrs. Maaske's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Holmquist and son Hugh, who arrived from Burwell Saturday night for a few days.

HOLLYWOOD HEIGHTS

Before anymore time elapses, we want to tell you of some guests who were at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Crump not too long ago. They were Mrs. Crump's sisters, Mrs. Leonard Leach and her sons, Dale and Gene; and Mrs. Marvin Lukenbach and daughter Janet, all from Longmont, Colo.

While they were in Nebraska, the guests and Mr. and Mrs. Crump drove to Dorchester to the home of another brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Fredrich Kleinholz and family. Joining the reunion was Mrs. Crump's brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rarvin of Dorchester.

SOUTH BROOK SUMMIT

Bridge enthusiasts at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hartley Doane Tuesday night included Mrs. Ed Hines, Miss Grace Sobotka, Mrs. Mike Morton, Mrs. Don Davis, Mrs. Joe Grey, Mrs. Richard Faling, and Mrs. Larry Russell. Refreshments served by Mrs. Doane were coffee and dessert.

The social life doesn't end with a bridge party, though, for next weekend Mr. and Mrs. Doane are expecting a guest—Mrs. Doane's sister, Mrs. LaRee Cass of Beaver City, who will be spending a few days in Lincoln.

PARK MANOR

Visitors, trips, and the like are no strange words in Park Manor this week. Guests who will be arriving this weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Nelson and sons, Dwayne and Dennis, are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wilkins and their children, Theresa, Mary Jo, and Jane. The Wilkins family will arrive Saturday from Fremont and return home on Sunday evening.

There have been and will be several moving dates in the Park Manor area, and among them are Dr. and Mrs. William Nye and sons, Eric and Hoyt, who left Park Manor two weeks ago for their new home on Fall Creek Road.

Our second exodus is that of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hergenrader and their children, Scott, Steve, and Kathy, who will be residing at their new home in Wedgewood Manor in two weeks.

We Hear That

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Muggy have received word of the birth of their first grandchild, Penni Lynette Carlson, who was born on Tuesday, Nov. 5, at Wiesbaden, Germany. Penni's parents are A. 1c and Mrs. Ronald Carlson (Connie Muggy) who currently are stationed with the Air Force in Germany, and her paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. George Hurley of San Bruno, Calif.

★

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Liesveld have had as their guests this last week Mr. Liesveld's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Liesveld of Imperial Beach, Calif.

★

Miss Jeri Adam, a senior at Lincoln High School, and her mother, Mrs. Jerry Adam, left Lincoln by plane on Monday for a three-day visit in Hollywood, Calif. As a grand prize winner in a national contest, Miss Adam won the trip, $500 in merchandise, and an appearance on the Dick Clark TV show, which will be shown on Nov. 23.

★

Parents of a baby son, Stephen Joseph, who was born on Oct. 8, are Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Fenton of Denver, formerly of Lincoln. A former student at the University of Nebraska and a member of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity, Mr. Fenton is the son of Mrs. Daniel A. Fenton of Lincoln. The baby's maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Burke of Jackson, Miss.

Guild To Meet

Members of the Lincoln Symphony Guild will meet at 10 o'clock, Monday morning, at Trinity Methodist Church, for a program to be given by Leo Kopp, conductor of the Lincoln Symphony Orchestra.

Officers Installed

Meeting for installation of new officers last Friday evening were the members of the Nebraska Alpha Chapter of Delta Theta Chi sorority.

Mrs. Richard Vestecka, past president, conducted the installation, held at the home of Mrs. Ralph Cole, and new officers include: president, Mrs. Elfriede Muennich; vice president, Mrs. Irving Schneider; educational director, Mrs. C. E. Mitchell, Jr.; recording secretary, Mrs. Charles Lindgren; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Vestecka; treasurer, Miss Agnes Van Ackeren; and sergeant-at-arms, Miss Margaret Evers.

Miss Norma Hansen was appointed chairman of the group's Christmas gift project for a foster child, and named to the Christmas party committee were Mrs. Cole, Mrs. Lindgren and Mrs. Schneider.

To Be Hostess

Mrs. Grant Johnson will be hostess to the Reserve Officers Association Ladies on Thursday evening at her home, 5830 Saylor.

The 8 o'clock meeting will feature slides taken aboard the aircraft carrier USS Kersarge, to be shown by Grant Johnson.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Byrne have announced the engagement of their daughter, Jeanette. to Lawrence Temple, son of Mrs. Ben Temple, and the late Mr. Temple.

The wedding will take place in January, at Long Beach, Calif., where Mr. Temple, who is serving with the Navy, is stationed aboard the USS Yorktown.

The exploits of Sylvia receive occasional mention in this column. I have had some difficulty in the past, and will no doubt have some in the future, attempting to rationalize the many extraordinary bids and plays Sylvia perpetrated at the club.

Of course, all bridge players pass through a stage, during their early years at the game, when they make frequent errors of judgment. Sylvia proved to be no exception in this regard, but what constantly amazed the members of the club was not that she made errors, but the nature of the errors she made.

Her approach to bridge was so far different from that of anyone we had ever seen that we found ourselves utterly unable to fathom the strange workings of her mind. Sylvia tried desperately to follow the logic of the game that her harassed partners attempted to impress upon her, but time after time she would go off on some tangent and come up with bids or plays the likes of which it is hard to imagine.

However, Sylvia's idiosyncrasies paid off in the strangest manner on many occasions, and the triumphs that resulted from them inevitably became the talk of the club. Except for this saving virtue, her future as a player would have been hopeless indeed.

Now take this hand, which occurred shortly after she joined the club. As usual, she was playing in the expert game, and, when South bid six hearts, Sylvia (West) doubled. It was certainly an optimistic double, since all she could reasonably expect to take on defense was a trump trick, but Sylvia doubled nevertheless.

Not only that, but her opening lead was the queen of hearts!

You may marvel at this lead, which was surely extraordinary, but if you really think about the matter, you find that this was the only card in Sylvia's hand she could lead that would—and did — defeat the contract. South would have lost only one trick against any other lead. As it was, he had to go down one.

Dear Abby

He Wears One, So—He Minds

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am in hot water with a very good friend of mine. I have known for years that he has worn a toupee, which is the only toupee I've ever seen that looks like the person's own hair. I told a group of men at my club that he wore a toupee. (Some were surprised, and many were not.) Later, when I saw my friend, he let me know in no uncertain terms that he did not appreciate my telling people that he wore a toupee. I did not mean to be unkind. I simply stated a fact. I didn't think he'd mind. Was I wrong?

CHECKING

DEAR CHECKING: Yes. You should have checked with him first. If he didn't "mind" — why do you think he would wear a toupee?

DEAR ABBY: So often when I am eating my lunch at a counter, two or three people will come in and ask if I would move down a seat or two so they can all sit together. I don't always feel like moving because it involves moving my purse and perhaps some packages. Also, I am usually absorbed in reading something, and I don't like to be interrupted. I used to move without a moment's hesitation, but the more I thought about it, the more I realized that it was just plain rude of people to ask me to move, and I quit doing it. Now when I refuse the request, everyone in the place (especially the waitresses) glare at me as though I were the rude one. Why do strangers feel it is owed them to be accommodated in this way? Or am I wrong?

NOT MOVING

DEAR NOT: Moving over a seat or two in order to accommodate people who wish to sit together is, in my opinion, so slight an inconvenience that it is rude to refuse.

The bidding:

The exploits of Sylvia receive occasional mention in this column. I have had some difficulty in the past, and will no doubt have some in the future, attempting to rationalize the many extraordinary bids and plays Sylvia perpetrated at the club.

Of course, all bridge players pass through a stage, during their early years at the game, when they make frequent errors of judgment. Sylvia proved to be no exception in this regard, but what constantly amazed the members of the club was not that she made errors, but the nature of the errors she made.

Her approach to bridge was so far different from that of anyone we had ever seen that we found ourselves utterly unable to fathom the strange workings of her mind. Sylvia tried desperately to follow the logic of the game that her harassed partners attempted to impress upon her, but time after time she would go off on some tangent and come up with bids or plays the likes of which it is hard to imagine.

However, Sylvia's idiosyncrasies paid off in the strangest manner on many occasions, and the triumphs that resulted from them inevitably became the talk of the club. Except for this saving virtue, her future as a player would have been hopeless indeed.

Now take this hand, which occurred shortly after she joined the club. As usual, she was playing in the expert game, and, when South bid six hearts, Sylvia (West) doubled. It was certainly an optimistic double, since all she could reasonably expect to take on defense was a trump trick, but Sylvia doubled nevertheless.

Not only that, but her opening lead was the queen of hearts!

You may marvel at this lead, which was surely extraordinary, but if you really think about the matter, you find that this was the only card in Sylvia's hand she could lead that would—and did — defeat the contract. South would have lost only one trick against any other lead. As it was, he had to go down one.

Dear Abby

He Wears One, So—He Minds

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am in hot water with a very good friend of mine. I have known for years that he has worn a toupee, which is the only toupee I've ever seen that looks like the person's own hair. I told a group of men at my club that he wore a toupee. (Some were surprised, and many were not.) Later, when I saw my friend, he let me know in no uncertain terms that he did not appreciate my telling people that he wore a toupee. I did not mean to be unkind. I simply stated a fact. I didn't think he'd mind. Was I wrong?

CHECKING

DEAR CHECKING: Yes. You should have checked with him first. If he didn't "mind" — why do you think he would wear a toupee?

DEAR ABBY: So often when I am eating my lunch at a counter, two or three people will come in and ask if I would move down a seat or two so they can all sit together. I don't always feel like moving because it involves moving my purse and perhaps some packages. Also, I am usually absorbed in reading something, and I don't like to be interrupted. I used to move without a moment's hesitation, but the more I thought about it, the more I realized that it was just plain rude of people to ask me to move, and I quit doing it. Now when I refuse the request, everyone in the place (especially the waitresses) glare at me as though I were the rude one. Why do strangers feel it is owed them to be accommodated in this way? Or am I wrong?

NOT MOVING

DEAR NOT: Moving over a seat or two in order to accommodate people who wish to sit together is, in my opinion, so slight an inconvenience that it is rude to refuse.

Decoration For A Festive Holiday

The "holidays" and "entertaining" are two words which just naturally seem to go together, and as everyone knows, there is more to the making of a successful party than food, alone. A gay touch in the way of party decorations can set the mood for a memorable afternoon or evening.

What could be more appropriate for the Thanksgiving holiday than a buffet table centered with a golden epergne filled with fruit in glowing autumn tones and topped by a huge golden pineapple?

Believe it or not, several rolls of gold, gift-wrap foil, cardboard boxes and lids, and cellophane (sticky) tape, will do the trick.

Materials:

For epergne: 1 roll of plain or patterned gold gift-wrap; 2 round hat-box lids (one large, one small); 2 small round cereal boxes for bases.

For pineapple: 1 roll of textured gold gift-wrap; newspapers; cellophane tape.

Directions:

Epergne: with rubber cement, cover outside of cereal boxes with gold paper. Glue boxes as bases to outside center of hat-box lids. Cut horizontal strips of gold paper 4½ inches wide, with one edge cut in points following any pattern in the paper. Cement strips around edge of each lid, with points down, tucking straight edge inside lid rim for neat finish.

Pineapple: To form leaf cluster at top of pineapple, cut leaves (ranging from 8 inches to 14 inches in length) from double thickness of textured gold foil cemented back to back. For pineapple shape, make a large, tight wad of newspapers and tape to hold in shape.

Arrange leaves in graduated cluster (as illustrated) and tape at "stems"; firmly tape leaf cluster to top of pineapple shape, which is than covered with rows of 3-inch wide strips of foil wrap scalloped along one edge.

Mothers Club

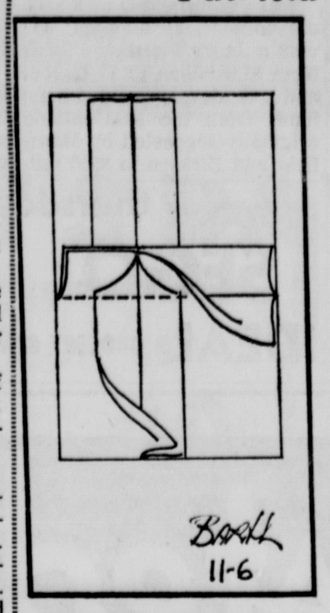
The Delta Gamma Mothers Club will meet for an 11:15 o'clock luncheon on Saturday in room 240 of the Student Union.

A short business meeting will be held after which the members will join their husbands at the chapter house for a Parents Day program to be given by the active chapter members.

It Seams To Me

Questions, Answers

Patricia Scott



Q. Last year I made a satin dress and the color is shaded — the skirt and bodice look as though they don't match. What happened and how can I prevent it in the future? — Mrs. T. Y.

A. You cut it out wrong. With satin, follow the cutting layout on the pattern for napped fabrics. All pieces should be placed going in the same direction.

Q. What can I do to avoid bulk with seams that cross each other? — Mrs. B. S.

A. Stitch all of the seams of the pieces to be joined. Press each one open. Then stitch the seam that crosses. Press the seams open or to one side where they meet and trim the edges of one seam as illustrated.

Q. Should coats and dresses be even from floor to hem all around? Some coats are a little longer in the back. — Miss V. M.

A. Hems should be even from floor all around. An uneven hemline detracts from your figure. One that dips in the back will only look as though your coat or dress is falling back off your shoulders, making the garment hang wrong.

Q. I want to do button tufting for reversible back and seat cushions on my rocker. The cushions are very thin so I can place the buttons on front and back. How should I proceed? — Mrs. T. W.

A. Use heavy thread, doubled, and a long darning needle. Tie or sew the thread firmly to the shank of the button. Insert the needle through to the other side of the cushion and through the shank of the other button. Bring te thread back through the cushion under the first button, and draw it tight. Tie the thread ends securely and cut.

Q. To lengthen some of my teen-age daughters dresses with different fabric, how do I cut the facings for straight and circular skirts? — Mrs. L. R.

A. For straight skirts cut facing on the true bias. For circular skirts, cut facing the exact shape of lower edge of skirt.

Senate Adopts Bipartisan Compromise Amendment Cutting Foreign Aid

Washington (AP) — The Senate adopted Wednesday night a bipartisan leadership compromise amendment slashing the foreign aid authorization bill by $460 million to $3.7 billion.

The vote was 89 to 0 after the Senate had voted 86 to 3 to approve a surprise leadership-sanctioned change in the amendment lopping off $50 million. A $25 million cut in the compromise had been voted Tuesday, making the total $75 million below a $385 million cut proposed by Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., and GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois.

Adoption of their amendment cleared the way for action on other proposals aimed at cuts in programs not embraced in the compromise and in placing tighter restrictions on administration of the program.

The amended bill compares to $4.2 billion recommended by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, $4.5 billion originally requested by President Kennedy and $3.5 billion voted by the House.

Mansfield and Dirksen had offered their compromise in an effort to stave off deeper cuts in the $4.2 billion recommended by the Senate committee.

Their agreement to the $50 million cut sponsored by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., assistant majority leader, broke the logjam which for nearly two weeks has held up action on the controversial measure.

The only ones to vote against Humphrey's amendment were Sens. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., and Claiborne Pell, D-R.I.

It revises the original Mansfield-Dirksen compromise to increase authorizations for the Alliance for Progress fund in Latin America from $525 to $600 million. It also cuts those for President Kennedy's contingency fund to meet unforeseeable emergencies from $300 million to $175 for a net reduction of $50 million.

Adoption of the Mansfield-Dirksen amendment came after another day of floor debate but with stepped-up backstage maneuvering.

Mansfield and Dirksen got together with ranking Democratic and Republican members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to reach agreement on accepting Humphrey's change.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., the foreign relations chairman, said in reply to questions that he was going ditional $50 million cut but he was not happy with it.

Fulbright said it became obvious to him Tuesday, when the leadership failed by two votes to beat a $25 million cut, that some further reduction would be essential.

But he said it was obvious the total voted by the Senate in the authorization bill would be cut further in conference with the House, and that the final authorization total would be chopped in the appropriation bill along with Humphrey's action bill.

The Mansfield-Dirksen amendment, as adopted: (1) cuts military assistance funds from $1.3 billion to $1 billion, and (2) development loan funds from the $975 million originally suggested by Mansfield and Dirksen to $950 million and the $1.06 billion recommended by the committee.

Other cuts have been proposed in still other sections in the bill not embraced in the compromise amendment.

There were strong indications that $3,742,365,000 would be the final figure in the Senate bill when it completes action, probably next week.

CENTO Meet Ends

Ankara, Turkey (AP) — The Central Treaty Organization's (CENTO) top military men ended their two-day regular regional meeting Wednesday. A brief communique said the military committee of the allied countries — Iran, Pakistan, Britain and Turkey — considered plans for defense of the CENTO area and approved combined training programs up to 1965.

Senate Adopts Bipartisan Compromise Amendment Cutting Foreign Aid

Washington (AP) — The Senate adopted Wednesday night a bipartisan leadership compromise amendment slashing the foreign aid authorization bill by $460 million to $3.7 billion.

The vote was 89 to 0 after the Senate had voted 86 to 3 to approve a surprise leadership-sanctioned change in the amendment lopping off $50 million. A $25 million cut in the compromise had been voted Tuesday, making the total $75 million below a $385 million cut proposed by Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., and GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois.

Adoption of their amendment cleared the way for action on other proposals aimed at cuts in programs not embraced in the compromise and in placing tighter restrictions on administration of the program.

The amended bill compares to $4.2 billion recommended by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, $4.5 billion originally requested by President Kennedy and $3.5 billion voted by the House.

Mansfield and Dirksen had offered their compromise in an effort to stave off deeper cuts in the $4.2 billion recommended by the Senate committee.

Their agreement to the $50 million cut sponsored by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., assistant majority leader, broke the logjam which for nearly two weeks has held up action on the controversial measure.

The only ones to vote against Humphrey's amendment were Sens. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., and Claiborne Pell, D-R.I.

It revises the original Mansfield-Dirksen compromise to increase authorizations for the Alliance for Progress fund in Latin America from $525 to $600 million. It also cuts those for President Kennedy's contingency fund to meet unforeseeable emergencies from $300 million to $175 for a net reduction of $50 million.

Adoption of the Mansfield-Dirksen amendment came after another day of floor debate but with stepped-up backstage maneuvering.

Mansfield and Dirksen got together with ranking Democratic and Republican members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to reach agreement on accepting Humphrey's change.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., the foreign relations chairman, said in reply to questions that he was going ditional $50 million cut but he was not happy with it.

Fulbright said it became obvious to him Tuesday, when the leadership failed by two votes to beat a $25 million cut, that some further reduction would be essential.

But he said it was obvious the total voted by the Senate in the authorization bill would be cut further in conference with the House, and that the final authorization total would be chopped in the appropria- along with Humphrey's adtion bill.

The Mansfield-Dirksen amendment, as adopted: (1) cuts military assistance funds from $1.3 billion to $1 billion, and (2) development loan funds from the $975 million originally suggested by Mansfield and Dirksen to $950 million and the $1.06 billion recommended by the committee.

Other cuts have been proposed in still other sections in the bill not embraced in the compromise amendment.

There were strong indications that $3,742,365,000 would be the final figure in the Senate bill when it completes action, probably next week.

Theft Of $180 From Apartment Reported

Police Wednesday were looking for someone who took $180 from the apartment of Eleanor Epley and Lois Lyden, 1732 No. 27th.

Police said the money was taken from a bureau in a bedroom.

School Fire Drills Numerous

Schools in unprecedented numbers are reporting required monthly fire drills, State Fire Marshall Joseph Divis reported Wednesday.

State law requires all schools not only to conduct monthly fire drills but to file reports to that effect with the fire marshal.

Many have been ignoring this and Divis recently said he would crack down with court actions against schools which failed to comply.

Divis said his threat has brought results. He said some schools have filed reports for the first time.

The fire marshal said his office is keeping track of school reports and renewed his pledge to bring actions against those who fail to file.

Under the law, school board members are subject to fines and possible jail sentences for failure to hold fire drills as prescribed.

School Fire Drills Numerous

Schools in unprecedented numbers are reporting required monthly fire drills, State Fire Marshall Joseph Divis reported Wednesday.

State law requires all schools not only to conduct monthly fire drills but to file reports to that effect with the fire marshal.

Many have been ignoring this and Divis recently said he would crack down with court actions against schools which failed to comply.

Divis said his threat has brought results. He said some schools have filed reports for the first time.

The fire marshal said his office is keeping track of school reports and renewed his pledge to bring actions against those who fail to file.

Under the law, school board members are subject to fines and possible jail sentences for failure to hold fire drills as prescribed.

McCourts End Stay At NWU

Visiting Distinguished Prof. Dr Tom McCourt Friday ends nine weeks of residence on the Nebraska Wesleyan University campus.

Students, faculty and the Board of Trustees will honor Dr. and Mrs. McCourt in a brief ceremony Friday morning for their contributions to the campus

Student Senate Pres. Bob Baker will present the McCourts an engraved plaque expressing appreciation of the students.

Prof. Lewis Schafer will speak for faculty members and Richard Smith, Lincoln attorney, will present a citation thanking the McCourts on behalf of the board.

The McCourts will leave Lincoln Sunday morning for Denver. They will spend the last nine weeks of the semester at Colorado Woman's College.

Marvel's Bill-Review Plan OKd By Senators

The Legislature Wednesday went along with Hastings Sen. Richard Marvel's plan to insure that there are no mistakes in budget and other bills receiving consideration at the current special session.

Marvel moved that four pending bills—LB's 4, 7, 15 and 20— be submitted for a review of correctness to the Legislature's own fiscal staff, the bill drafter, the attorney general, the enrollment and review staff, the state auditor and to all department heads affected by the bills.

The senator said he is trying "to prevent what happened during the regular session," a reference to bill errors uncovered after the session adjourned.

The motion carried 36-2 after discussion during which it was disclosed that plans are afoot to increase the Legislature's bill drafting staff, which presently includes only two attorneys.

Marvel noted that the legislative staff is no larger than when the Unicameral took form although the number of bills has doubled.

Sen. Harold Stryker of Rising City, chairman of the Legislative Council, disclosed the plans to enlarge the bill drafting staff. He said also interim study committees will be urged to finish their work by Sept. 1 to allow bill drafters more time to prepare recommended measures for the 1965 session.

Although Marvel's bill-review plan drew little opposition, several senators said it wouldn't work during the regular session when bills are numbered in the hundreds.

Viet Cong Try To Stir Trouble Over Religion

Saigon, Viet Nam (AP) — The new revolutionary government's security minister said Wednesday that the Viet Cong Communists are trying to stir religious strife in South Viet Nam in the wake of the coup that destroyed Ngo Dinh Diem's regime.

Maj. Gen. Ton That Dinh said success of the revolution has stricken the Viet Cong with fear of annihilation in a revitalized military campaign and that they are desperately trying through religious channels to divide the peopie and spread confusion.

"They urge Catholics to go to their churches to pray for Ngo Dinh Diem and the Buddhists to go to pagodas and temples to pray for the soldiers killed in the revolution," Dinh said. "At the same time they order their agents to pass themselves off as Catholics in order to express their pretended discontent with the government or for provocative acts against Catholicism.

Aim: Strife

"The aim of all this is to create an atmosphere of strife and hatred among the religions."

Dinh reiterated that the military revolutionary committee which won power Saturday "stands for freedom and equality of religion and national solidarity to combat the Communists and rebuild Viet Nam."

He appealed to the people of Saigon of all religions to unite to help the armed forces fight the Viet Cong. He said residents of the capital "should not hesitate to denounce troublemakers who sow discord and sabotage the work of the entire people's revolution."

Dinh's charge concerning the Communists resembled one that President Diem made repeatedly after the Buddhist crisis broke May 8.

Diem, a Roman Catholic, declared that Communist agitators helped to promote unrest among both Buddhist and student leaders. He was accused of discrimination against the Buddhist majority.

Bust Taken Away

The revolutionary regime got rid of another symbol of Diem Wednesday. A crane yanked a six-foot-high bronze head of the president from the yard in front of the military headquarters in Saigon and a truck carted it off.

The junta now calls the death of Diem and his brother Ngo Dinh Nhu "accidental suicide." It claims they were killed in an armored personnel carrier while struggling for a guard's pistol after they surrendered at a Roman Catholic church.

Murder-For-Money Trial Bounces To Top Court

Minneapolis (AP)—The murder trial of St. Paul attorney T. Eugene Thompson took a sensational bounce Wednesday from a county courtroom to the Minnesota Supreme Court.

In a possibly unprecedented state legal maneuver, prosecution and defense attorneys went into a closed-door huddle with five State Supreme Court justices after a lower-court judge presiding at the trial had ordered the prosecution to produce a certain witness's statement.

The attorneys were closeted with members of the court for an hour and a half. They left by a back way. Afterward Chief Justice Oscar Knutson refused to see reporters.

Mae Sherman, clerk of the Supreme Court, said, "Nothing is being filed tonight," and added:

"You will know the result in court (in Minneapolis) in the morning."

While there was no confirmation from any of the principals, it was assumed that prosecutor William Randall had asked the court for an order upholding his right not to present the statement in question.

District Judge Rolf Fosseen, who is presiding at the trial, had, at the request of Thompson's counsel, directed Randall to produce a copy of a statement a state witness had earlier given police.

The witness, Floyd Peterson, St. Paul insurance man, had been testifying about some of the $1,055,000 insurance Thompson had taken out on the life of his attractive wife, Carol, who was slain in the Thompson home last March 6.

The state contends Thompson had her killed for the insurance because of another woman with whom Thompson had been having an affair.

Peterson had testified he had Mrs. Thompson sign the insurance applications in blank, at Thompson's request.

Defense counsel Hyam Segell brought out that Peterson had been questioned by St. Paul police shortly after the murder. Segell, in a conference at the bench, then apparently requested that the statement be produced.

'Very Sorry'

"I am very, very sorry I am unable to comply," replied the prosecutor.

Judge Fosseen immediately declared an indefinite recess and refused to talk to newsmen.

Randall and an associate stalked from the courthouse, in downtown Minneapolis, brushing aside questions.

Immediately after lunch, with the trial still in recess, the attorneys and the Supreme Court judges went into closed-door sessions at the State Capitol in St. Paul, 10 miles away.

Testimony in the trial began Monday, on a change of venue from St. Paul.

Father Of Four

Witnesses thus far have chiefly testified about the way Thompson had his wife insured heavily, with himself as beneficiary, in the year before she was beaten and stabbed to death. On both direct and cross-examination, the youthful defendant, himself a successful criminal attorney and the father of four, has been pictured as a man who invested heavily in liability insurance, as well.

He has also been pictured as a man who had premonitions of death of persons close to him, including such a premonition about Mrs. Thompson less than a year before her death.

Congo Force Cut

United Nations, N.Y. (AP)—The United Nations announced that by Nov. 1, the strength of its force in the Congo was down to 6,453, a reduction of 821 since Sept. 27. The announcement said the return of Irish units to their homeland was the main reason for the decrease.

Murder-For-Money Trial Bounces To Top Court

Minneapolis (AP)—The murder trial of St. Paul attorney T. Eugene Thompson took a sensational bounce Wednesday from a county courtroom to the Minnesota Supreme Court.

In a possibly unprecedented state legal maneuver, prosecution and defense attorneys went into a closed-door huddle with five State Supreme Court justices after a lower-court judge presiding at the trial had ordered the prosecution to produce a certain witness's statement.

The attorneys were closeted with members of the court for an hour and a half. They left by a back way. Afterward Chief Justice Oscar Knutson refused to see reporters.

Mac Sherman, clerk of the Supreme Court, said, "Nothing is being filed tonight," and added:

"You will know the result in court (in Minneapolis) in the morning."

While there was no confirmation from any of the principals, it was assumed that prosecutor William Randall had asked the court for an order upholding his right not to present the statement in question.

District Judge Rolf Fosseen, who is presiding at the trial, had, at the request of Thompson's counsel, directed Randall to produce a copy of a statement a state witness had earlier given police.

The witness, Floyd Peterson, St. Paul insurance man, had been testifying about some of the $1,055,000 insurance Thompson had taken out on the life of his attractive wife, Carol, who was slain in the Thompson home last March 6.

The state contends Thompson had her killed for the insurance because of another woman with whom Thompson had been having an affair.

Peterson had testified he had Mrs. Thompson sign the insurance applications in blank, at Thompson's request.

Defense counsel Hyam Segell brought out that Peterson had been questioned by St. Paul police shortly after the murder. Segell, in a conference at the bench, then apparently requested that the statement be produced.

'Very Sorry'

"I am very, very sorry I am unable to comply," replied the prosecutor.

Judge Fosseen immediately declared an indefinite recess and refused to talk to newsmen.

Randall and an associate stalked from the courthouse, in downtown Minneapolis, brushing aside questions.

Immediately after lunch, with the trial still in recess, the attorneys and the Supreme Court judges went into closed-door sessions at the State Capitol in St. Paul, 10 miles away.

Testimony in the trial began Monday, on a change of venue from St. Paul.

On both direct and cross-examination the youthful defendant, himself a successful criminal attorney and the father of four, has been pictured as a man who invested heavily in liability insurance, as well.

Michka Chose NU Because Of 'Homestate Pride'

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Old-timers in Nebraska can remember the days when it was the ambition of every high school football player to some day play for the Cornhuskers.

Ron Michka, No. 1 center on the current Scarlet and Cream team, is a throwback to those days.

"I hate to see people go out of the state to school," he says, "especially when you can help your own state."

The Husker center was explaining why he picked Nebraska over schools such as Kansas, Iowa State, Wyoming, Stanford, Dartmouth and Princeton. These schools were all interested in his football abilities when he graduated from Omaha Benson as an all-state tackle.

"I guess it was mostly homestate pride that persuaded me to go to Nebraska," he says.

Smallest In Line

Michka, at 6-0 and 205 pounds, is the smallest member of the gigantic Husker forward wall. And the Husker center admits his lack of size has been a handicap.

"A lot of small football players can make up for their lack of size by speed," he notes. "But I'm not quick either, so my size does hurt."

While Michka explains that some small football players make up for their lack of size with speed, there is another substitute—hustle.

And it is Michka's hustle that brings a smile to coach Bob Devaney.

Constant Hustle

"I have never seen Ron when he wasn't hustling and that includes every minute of all our practice sessions and whenever he is in the game," Devaney points out.

"Michka's hustle is a big factor in our team morale," Devaney continues. "He always breaks out of the huddle and races to the ball. This sets an example for the rest of the team."

Michka gives teammates Larry Kramer, Lloyd Voss and Bob Brown credit for helping him with his lack of size.

"When there are guys like Kramer and Voss beside you and Brown behind you, they can cover up for any mistakes you might make," Michka relates.

Likes NU Offense

The Husker center figures that he is not handicapped on offense, partly because of the type offense coach Devaney and his staff teach.

"I like our offense because my size doesn't hurt me," he notes. "Under our system I am usually double-teaming with someone or covering for a pulling guard. It's when you have to block straight ahead and man-on-man that my size would hurt, but I don't have to do that much."

Michka winds up his competition at NU this year, but still has two years of school before completing his work for a pharmacy degree. He switched to pharmacy from business administration.

Baseball Unsure

Michka also is being counted on as an outfielder on coach Tony Sharpe's baseball squad next spring, but he may bypass the diamond sport.

"I will have a number of afternoon labs next spring in the Pharmacy College and whether or not I play baseball will depend on my class schedule," he explains.

Michka came to the Cornhusker camp as a tackle and played at that position as a freshman. The switch to center was made after his freshman year.

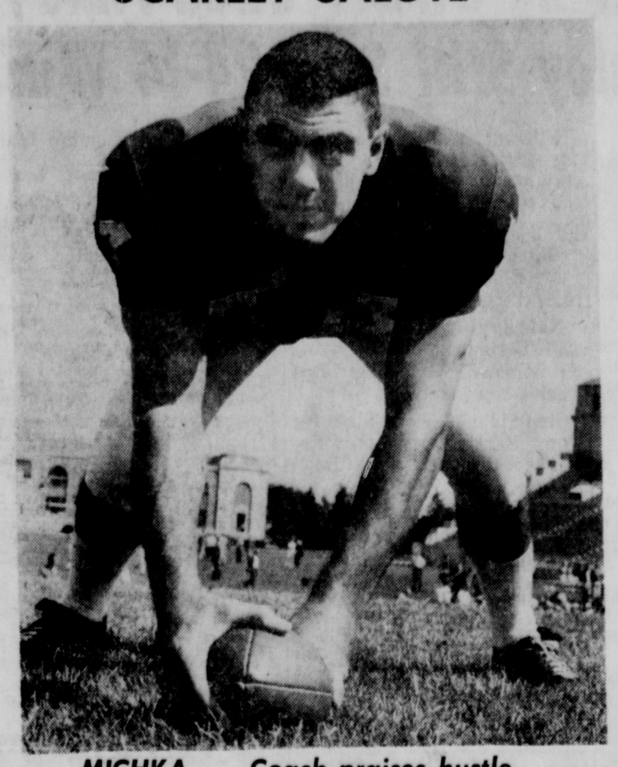
—SCARLET SALUTE—



MICHKA . . . Coach praises hustle.

Claridge Still Sidelined, But Swelling Subsiding

Nebraska continued preparations Wednesday for Saturday's encounter with Kansas and still missing from the NU practice fields was quarterback Dennis Claridge.

The Husker signal-caller remains in the NU Student Health Center, but trainer Paul Schneider reported that the swelling in Claridge's leg had gone down somewhat and if the swelling continues to go down, he could play.

"We still hope he can play some," coach Bob Devaney said. "It's not a joint injury like Kiffin's and it's possible that Claridge could play even though it's not completely healed."

Kiffin was termed as very, very doubtful Wednesday by Devaney, but the Husker coach noted that Frank Solich may return to action for the first time since suffering an ankle injury at Minnesota.

Solich would be used as a kickoff and punt return specialist, two phases of play that have caused the Huskers some trouble in recent weeks.

If Claridge cannot play Saturday, Fred Duda would guide both the first two units on offense with Dick Callahan taking over on defense.

JAYHAWK GUARD . . . Ron Marsh of Omaha, junior 185-pounder, is Kansas star.

Huskers' Ground Defense 6th Best

New York, N.Y.—Nebraska's rushing defense, having given up an average of 81.4 yards per game, ranks sixth in the nation among major colleges, according to figures released Wednesday by the NCAA Service Bureau.

Michigan State is the leader with a 66.2 average.

The total defense leader is Mississippi, having allowed opponents only 128.2 yards per game both rushing and passing.

RUDY JOHNSON NO. 12 RUSHER

New York, N.Y.—Nebraska fullback Rudy Johnson moved into 12th place among major college rushers, figures released Wednesday by the NCAA Service Bureau reveal.

Johnson's 126 yards against Missouri Saturday boosted his season total to 493 yards. The Husker fullback is only 16 yards away from ninth place, shared jointly by Oklahoma's Jim Grisham and Cornell's Gary Wood.

Jimmy Sidle of Auburn is the rushing leader with 648 yards. Iowa State's Tom Vaughn is second with 642 and Gale Sayers of Kansas ranks fourth with 634.

Sayers and Johnson are tied for 13th in scoring with Lawrence Elkins of Baylor, all with 44 points. Dick Limerick of Iowa State is fifth with 53 points.

Huskers Worry Jayhawk Mentor

Lawrence, Kan. (AP)—Coach Jack Mitchell of Kansas said Wednesday it is difficult to prepare for the Nebraska game Saturday because "They do so many things so well and have such good personnel."

"They are so big and so strong and have so much speed in the backfield it gives you no place to start worrying and no place to stop," he said.

Asked if last year's Nebraska game, which Kansas lost 40-16, will make any difference in Saturday's game, Mitchell said:

"I don't think it will. It isn't the same squad as last year. If anything, it will help Nebraska because they'll be out to prove it was no fluke, so they'll try even harder. Really, I don't think last year's game will have anything to do with it."

Bears' Foes Have Yet To Achieve 100 Points

New York (AP) — The Chicago Bears operate on the old theory that you don't have to roll up a score if you can stop the other fellow. They are the only winning team in the National Football League that has not scored 200 points. They also are the only team that hasn't given up at least 100 points.

More important, perhaps, is the record of the Bears' interior line in keeping the enemy away from quarterback Bill Wade. The Chicago passer has been thrown for a loss only 10 times in eight games for a total of 87 yards.

Normally the interior offensive line is composed of Herman Lee, Ted Karras, Mike Pyle, Bob Wetoska and Steve Barnett. However, George Halas shifted Wetoska to tackle to work on Gino Marchetti at Baltimore Sunday. Jim Cadile took over Wetoska's job at guard.

Although the Bears are eighth in total offense, sixth in passing and 10th in rushing they are tied with Green Bay for the lead in the Western Conference of the NFL. Bear passers lead the league in completions, 145, and percentage of completions, 61.2. Only seven Chicago passes have been intercepted.

PIUS X WANTS GAMES

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

A plea by Pius X to be included on the non-conference schedules of Lincoln's three public schools if the new metropolitan conference becomes a reality apparently is headed for futility.

The Pius request was made in a letter from principal Father Paul Sheehy to principals William Bogar at Lincoln High, H. V. Taylor at Northeast and Craig Whitney at Southeast, and to Superintendent of Schools Dr. Steven Watkins.

Father Sheehy's letter said: "In view of the imminent arrival of the new athletic conference, and the changes in your schedules which this will bring about, we would like to request that you give consideration to placing Pius X High School on your football, basketball and wrestling schedules in coming years. I feel that our relationships have been excellent for the past few years, and I would like to see these extended to more athletic competition.

"We understand that in addition to your conference commitment, you will be able to sign contracts with a limited number of extra-conference teams. Since we all agree that activities of this sort should take place with a minimum of travel and expense, it would seem to our mutual advantage to schedule as many of our games in the city of Lincoln as possible. I am certain that such a practice would benefit the community in many ways."

Two Replies

Father Sheehy said he had received replies from Taylor and Whitney, but that he had not heard from Bogar or Watkins.

The Southeast principal's reply was non-committal while Taylor at Northeast expressed virtually no chance of including Pius on the Rockets' schedule.

Whitney wrote:

"As you probably know there is nothing definite concerning the formation of a new athletic conference. We have been holding a series of meetings but at the present time, no information has been released with respect to this conference. The reason it has not been released is that everything is so indefinite and is still under serious study.

"We appreciate your sentiments concerning our intracity rivalry and we shall be most happy to keep you posted as the deliberations in this matter continue to take shape."

Southeast now plays the Thunderbolts in football and basketball.

Taylor replied to Father Sheehy:

"I think there is not much to say at least at this time. If and when the new conference is formed we will not be in a position of having a loose schedule but we will be faced with a much tighter situation. We will be forced to include schools which are not now on our schedule. Obviously we will have to drop some of our present opponents.

"It is also true that we will be forced to drop some that we dislike very much to lose. We will of course hold onto schools with whom our relationship seems to be most significant."

Bogar did not reply to Father Sheehy's letter, but the Lincoln High principal told The Star Wednesday night the Links had no prospective openings on their schedules at the present time.

"We are always interested in good competition and I think Pius would furnish this," Bogar said. "But we are tied up with league and city commitments and there are no prospects at the present time for openings."

Father Sheehy charged Wednesday that Pius' attempts to gain consideration by the proposed new metropolitan conference and by the Lincoln public schools are showing little progress.

The Pius principal said no word had been received concerning a formal application to the new league made by the Catholic high school July 13.

"On July 13, 1963, the late Superintendent of Pius X, Father Benedict E. Kalin, made formal application for membership in the incipient Inter-City Conference Father Sheehy said Wednesday. "The letters were sent to Superintendents of Schools, Dr. Steven Watkins of Lincoln and Dr. Paul Miller of Omaha, but no answer was received."

However, Dr. Watkins said Wednesday night that Pius X High School's plea for consideration by the proposed new league would not go unnoticed.

"Their (Pius) letter will be read at Friday's meeting and they will be given consideration along with any other school that has made application," Dr. Watkins said.

"There are a number of schools who would like to join the league if it is formed," Dr. Watkins continued. "However, with any league you have to limit the size. We couldn't have a league with 20 teams.

"If the 14 that were originally invited decide to form the league and with the two spots saved for new schools in Lincoln and Omaha, then there would be no room for anyone else," he noted.

The 14 schools to be represented at the Friday meeting at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education are Lincoln High, Northeast, Southeast, Omaha South, Benson, Central, Westside, Tech, North, Creighton Prep, Bishop Ryan, Bellevue, Hastings and Grand Island.

Listen To This

An Open Letter:

This is a letter to the fair minded and thinking citizens of our community. During the last winter many of you drove your automobiles into a service station or garage to have your radiator checked. In hotels and cafes it is customary to tip employees even though at times they do not render extra service.

How many car owners would think of tipping their favorite automobile serviceman who in the severest of weather performs many services without cost to the car owner, such as checking tires, radiators, oil, batteries, etc.?

Actually these people don't expect a tip for all this free service but you should stop and think a minute how the operator must feel when he knows you bought your tires, batteries, etc. at a discount house or a grocery store or a drug store at the same price he has to pay, or even less than his cost.

This season we see more and more stores using automobile accessories, such as tires, oil, batteries, anti-freeze, etc. as loss-leaders. So, Mr. Car Owner, the next time a severe cold spell moves in, stop back at the store where you purchased your tires, batteries, anti-freeze, etc. and ask them to come out in the freezing, disagreeable weather and use an expensive, easily broken hydrometer to check your radiator or your battery. I think the results would be most interesting.

Here is a problem all motorists should consider — anti-freeze, batteries, tires, etc., should be installed by the seller who at the same time will check your automobile. Proper installation of anti-freeze demands checking of connecting hoses and radiator for leaks plus the correct amount for the cold season. The same inspection is necessary for proper installation of batteries, tires, etc. Furthermore the installer will be most happy to check his product many times during the winter months and advise you whether you have adequate protection.

Usually the motorist will ask for this free service during the severest weather, thus imposing a hardship on the serviceman, but rarely does he complain. Now, Mr. Car Owner, let us all bear in mind if we take this business away from the people who are willing to give free service with our purchases, then the time is near and justified that the serviceman make a charge for these services.

As we think about this problem, don't you agree it would be better for all concerned if Mr. Grocer and Druggist would use some of their own items as loss leaders in their respective stores and let the automotive servicemen have their small percentage of profit so that they can support their families and give the "free service" you have enjoyed in the past?

MITCHELL

Spitballer Dies In GI

Grand Island, Neb. (AP) — Clarence Mitchell, one of the last of the spitball pitchers, died Wednesday of a heart condition at age 72.

Mitchell, who had been a tavern operator in nearby Aurora, died about an hour after entering Veterans Hospital here. He had been in poor health for five years.

Mitchell spent 18 seasons in the majors, starting with Detroit in 1911 and winding up with the New York Giants in 1932. In between he was with Cincinnati, Brooklyn, the Philadelphia Phillies and St. Louis Cardinals, with time out for World War I service.

Mitchell had the dubious distinction of being the only man ever to hit into an unassisted triple play in World Series history.

Mitchell was a native of Franklin, Neb. He is survived by his widow and two sons, Wallace of Huntington Beach, Calif. and Clarence Jr., of Lincoln, Neb.

Funeral services will be held Saturday in Aurora.

Barr Gets AP Laurel

New York (AP) — Terry Barr, a top candidate for comeback of the year after missing half of last season due to a knee injury, is The Associated Press Player of the Week in the National Football League on his outstanding game for Detroit against San Francisco.

Barr, who underwent surgery during the off-season and then was injured in a pre-season game, caught 10 of Earl Morrall's passes for 135 yards in the Lions' 45-7 romp over the 49ers Sunday. Three of the catches were for touchdowns on passes of 10, 21 and 6 yards.

The fleet flanker back was injured last year in the fourth game when he slipped and fell on the wet turf while going for a third-down pass from Milt Plum. Herb Adderley intercepted for Green Bay and the Packers followed up with a field goal with 33 seconds to go for a 9-7 victory.

Although Barr did get back in uniform and saw limited action in the Thanksgiving Day upset of the Packers, he never was right. At the time he was hurt, Barr had caught 25 passes.

The former Michigan player's performance against the 49ers Sunday gave him 31 receptions for 548 yards and 10th place in the league despite his delayed start. He has caught as many TD passes, seven, as anybody in the league.

Y. A. Tittle of the New York Giants and Jim Brown of Cleveland could have been picked for their work last Sunday. Tittle had another tremendous day with four touchdown passes in a 38-21 victory over St. Louis that gave the Giants undisputed possession of second place in the Eastern Conference. Brown also had another sensational performance with 223 yards against Philadelphia in a 23-17 triumph. He now has 1,194 yards rushing, compared to runner-up Jim Taylor of Green Bay with 639.

Michka Chose NU Because Of 'Homestate Pride'

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Old-timers in Nebraska can remember the days when it was the ambition of every high school football player to some day play for the Cornhuskers.

Ron Michka, No. 1 center on the current Scarlet and Cream team, is a throwback to those days.

"I hate to see people go out of the state to school," he says, "especially when you can help your own state."

The Husker center was explaining why he picked Nebraska over schools such as Kansas, Iowa State, Wyoming, Stanford, Dartmouth and Princeton. These schools were all interested in his football abilities when he graduated from Omaha Benson as an all-state tackle.

"I guess it was mostly homestate pride that persuaded me to go to Nebraska," he says.

Smallest In Line

Michka, at 6-0 and 205 pounds, is the smallest member of the gigantic Husker forward wall. And the Husker center admits his lack of size has been a handicap.

"A lot of small football players can make up for their lack of size by speed," he notes. "But I'm not quick either, so my size does hurt."

While Michka explains that some small football players make up for their lack of size with speed, there is another substitute—hustle.

And it is Michka's hustle that brings a smile to coach Bob Devaney.

Constant Hustle

"I have never seen Ron when he wasn't hustling and that includes every minute of all our practice sessions and whenever he is in the game," Devaney points out.

"Michka's hustle is a big factor in our team morale," Devaney continues. "He always breaks out of the huddle and races to the ball. This sets an example for the rest of the team."

Michka gives teammates Larry Kramer, Lloyd Voss and Bob Brown credit for helping him with his lack of size.

"When there are guys like Kramer and Voss beside you and Brown behind you, they can cover up for any mistakes you might make," Michka relates.

Likes NU Offense

The Husker center figures that he is not handicapped on offense, partly because of the type offense coach Devaney and his staff teach.

"I like our offense because my size doesn't hurt me," he notes. "Under our system I am usually double-teaming with someone or covering for a pulling guard. It's when you have to block straight ahead and man-on-man that my size would hurt, but I don't have to do that much."

Michka winds up his competition at NU this year, but still has two years of school before completing his work for a pharmacy degree. He switched to pharmacy from business administration.

Baseball Unsure

Michka also is being counted on as an outfielder on coach Tony Sharpe's baseball squad next spring, but he may bypass the diamond sport.

"I will have a number of afternoon labs next spring in the Pharmacy College and whether or not I play baseball will depend on my class schedule," he explains.

Michka came to the Cornhusker camp as a tackle and played at that position as a freshman. The switch to center was made after his freshman year.

The hustling Husker center is married and the father of a 13-month-old daughter.

—SCARLET SALUTE—

MICHKA . . . Coach praises hustle.

Claridge Still Sidelined, But Swelling Subsiding

Nebraska continued preparations Wednesday for Saturday's encounter with Kansas and still missing from the NU practice fields was quarterback Dennis Claridge.

The Husker signal-caller remains in the NU Student Health Center, but trainer Paul Schneider reported that the swelling in Claridge's leg had gone down somewhat and if the swelling continues to go down, he could play.

"We still hope he can play some," coach Bob Devaney said. "It's not a joint injury like Kiffin's and it's possible that Claridge could play even though it's not completely healed."

Kiffin was termed as very, very doubtful Wednesday by Devaney, but the Husker coach noted that Frank Solich may return to action for the first time since suffering an ankle injury at Minnesota.

Solich would be used as a kickoff and punt return specialist, two phases of play that have caused the Huskers some trouble in recent weeks.

If Claridge cannot play Saturday, Fred Duda would guide both the first two units on offense with Dick Callahan taking over on defense.

JAYHAWK GUARD . . . Ron Marsh of Omaha, junior 185-pounder, is Kansas star.

Huskers' Ground Defense 6th Best

New York, N.Y.—Nebraska's rushing defense, having given up an average of 81.4 yards per game, ranks sixth in the nation among major colleges, according to figures released Wednesday by the NCAA Service Bureau.

Michigan State is the leader with a 66.2 average.

The total defense leader is Mississippi, having allowed opponents only 128.2 yards per game both rushing and passing.

RUDY JOHNSON NO. 12 RUSHER

New York, N.Y.—Nebraska fullback Rudy Johnson moved into 12th place among major college rushers, figures released Wednesday by the NCAA Service Bureau reveal.

Johnson's 126 yards against Missouri Saturday boosted his season total to 493 yards. The Husker fullback is only 16 yards away from ninth place, shared jointly by Oklahoma's Jim Grisham and Cornell's Gary Wood.

Jimmy Sidle of Auburn is the rushing leader with 648 yards. Iowa State's Tom Vaughn is second with 642 and Gale Sayers of Kansas ranks fourth with 634.

Sayers and Johnson are tied for 13th in scoring with Lawrence Elkins of Baylor, all with 44 points. Dick Limerick of Iowa State is fifth with 53 points.

Huskers Worry Jayhawk Mentor

Lawrence, Kan. (AP)—Coach Jack Mitchell of Kansas said Wednesday it is difficult to prepare for the Nebraska game Saturday because "They do so many things so well and have such good personnel."

"They are so big and so strong and have so much speed in the backfield it gives you no place to start worrying and no place to stop," he said.

Asked if last year's Nebraska game, which Kansas lost 40-16, will make any difference in Saturday's game, Mitchell said:

"I don't think it will. It isn't the same squad as last year. If anything, it will help Nebraska because they'll be out to prove it was no fluke, so they'll try even harder. Really, I don't think last year's game will have anything to do with it."

However, Dr. Watkins said Wednesday night that Pius X High School's plea for consideration by the proposed new league would not go unnoticed.

"Their (Pius) letter will be read at Friday's meeting and they will be given consideration along with any other school that has made application," Dr. Watkins said.

"There are a number of schools who would like to join the league if it is formed," Dr. Watkins continued. "However, with any league you have to limit the size. We couldn't have a league with 20 teams.

"If the 14 that were originally invited decide to form the league and with the two spots saved for new schools in Lincoln and Omaha, then there would be no room for anyone else," he noted.

The 14 schools to be represented at the Friday meeting at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education are Lincoln High, Northeast, Southeast, Omaha South, Benson, Central, Westside, Tech, North, Creighton Prep, Bishop Ryan, Bellevue, Hastings and Grand Island.

MITCHELL

Spitballer Dies In GI

Grand Island, Neb. (AP) — Clarence Mitchell, one of the last of the spitball pitchers, died Wednesday of a heart condition at age 72.

Mitchell, who had been a tavern operator in nearby Aurora, died about an hour after entering Veterans Hospital here. He had been in poor health for five years.

Mitchell spent 18 seasons in the majors, starting with Detroit in 1911 and winding up with the New York Giants in 1932. In between he was with Cincinnati, Brooklyn, the Philadelphia Phillies and St. Louis Cardinals, with time out for World War I service.

Mitchell had the dubious distinction of being the only man ever to hit into an unassisted triple play in World Series history.

Mitchell was a native of Franklin, Neb. He is survived by his widow and two sons, Wallace of Huntington Beach, Calif. and Clarence Jr., of Lincoln, Neb.

Funeral services will be held Saturday in Aurora.

Listen To This

An Open Letter:

This is a letter to the fair minded and thinking citizens of our community. During the last winter many of you drove your automobiles into a service station or garage to have your radiator checked. In hotels and cafes it is customary to tip employees even though at times they do not render extra service.

How many car owners would think of tipping their favorite automobile serviceman who in the severest of weather performs many services without cost to the car owner, such as checking tires, radiators, oil, batteries, etc.?

Actually these people don't expect a tip for all this free service but you should stop and think a minute how the operator must feel when he knows you bought your tires, batteries, etc. at a discount house or a grocery store or a drug store at the same price he has to pay, or even less than his cost.

This season we see more and more stores using automobile accessories, such as tires, oil, batteries, anti-freeze, etc. as loss-leaders. So, Mr. Car Owner, the next time a severe cold spell moves in, stop back at the store where you purchased your tires, batteries, anti-freeze, etc. and ask them to come out in the freezing, disagreeable weather and use an expensive, easily broken hydrometer to check your radiator or your battery. I think the results would be most interesting.

Here is a problem all motorists should consider — anti-freeze, batteries, tires, etc., should be installed by the seller who at the same time will check your automobile. Proper installation of anti-freeze demands checking of connecting hoses and radiator for leaks plus the correct amount for the cold season. The same inspection is necessary for proper installation of batteries, tires, etc. Furthermore the installer will be most happy to check his product many times during the winter months and advise you whether you have adequate protection.

Usually the motorist will ask for this free service during the severest weather, thus imposing a hardship on the serviceman, but rarely does he complain. Now, Mr. Car Owner, let us all bear in mind if we take this business away from the people who are willing to give free service with our purchases, then the time is near and justified that the serviceman make a charge for these services.

As we think about this problem, don't you agree it would be better for all concerned if Mr. Grocer and Druggist would use some of their own items as loss leaders in their respective stores and let the automotive servicemen have their small percentage of profit so that they can support their families and give the "free service" you have enjoyed in the past?

Jr. Grapple Deadline Set

Saturday is the deadline for entry registration for Lincoln's city-wide junior wrestling program.

Boys between the ages of eight and 14, accompanied by a parent, may register at the Salvation Army Center, 1645 No. 27th.

All boys will receive supervised instruction. University of Nebraska wrestling coach Bob Mancuso and Olympic wrestler Newt Copple will direct the operation.

Randy Streeton, director of the Center, and Al Hawthorne, of the City Recreation Department, will also guide the instruction.

The University of Nebraska will provide its wrestling room for workouts. Starting Nov. 13 workouts will be held every Wednesday evening and Saturday morning.

The Center will participate in wrestling tournaments and guarantee that every boy will see action on the mats.

Scarlet 'Living On Borrowed Time', But Grimsley Still Sees 24-14 Win

By WILL GRIMSLEY

New York (AP) — Football players may not be as big or as many in the Ivy League, but the blood boils just as hot and passions run just as high.

So to Harvard goes the baton for the weekly sprint to Upset Gulch—over previously unbeaten and untied Princeton. The course should be smooth and untroubled for Texas, Auburn and other favorites.

Pokes at the pigskin:

Harvard 14, Princeton 8: The Crimson, at home, shackle the Tigers' Cosmo Iacavazzi and win a defensive bruiser.

Texas 20, Baylor 14: The Longhorns can't stop Don Trull completely but they can hit back more often.

Auburn 20, Mississippi State 0: The boys from the Delta do not have the equipment to stop Jimmy Sidle.

Navy 24, Maryland 7: Here's a pick for Wayne Hardin's Midshipmen, without mentioning You-Know-Who.

Pittsburgh 20, Notre Dame 14: Both teams have waded through a suicidal schedule, but Pitt should have greater drive.

Illiniois 14, Michigan 7: Pete Elliott proves he is not his brother's Bump keeper.

Nebraska 24, Kansas 14: The Cornhuskers still living on borrowed time after last week's squeaker.

Ohio State 19, Penn State 14: Tom Barrington keeps the Buckeyes in the Rose Bowl picture.

Washington 23, California 13: The Golden Bears are showing more fight, but the Huskies see the sign to Pasadena.

Oregon 19, Washington State 12: The Webfoots can waddle through this one come hell or high water.

Louisiana State 15, Texas Christian 8: Both smarting from discouraging defeats, but LSU at home.

Rice 13, Arkansas 7: When in doubt in a tough Southwest game, take the home team.

Jr. Grapple Deadline Set

Saturday is the deadline for entry registration for Lincoln's city-wide junior wrestling program.

Boys between the ages of eight and 14, accompanied by a parent, may register at the Salvation Army Center, 1645 No. 27th.

All boys will receive supervised instruction. University of Nebraska wrestling coach Bob Mancuso and Olympic wrestler Newt Copple will direct the operation.

Randy Streeton, director of the Center, and Al Hawthorne, of the City Recreation Department, will also guide the instruction.

The University of Nebraska will provide its wrestling room for workouts. Starting Nov. 13 workouts will be held every Wednesday evening and Saturday morning.

The Center will participate in wrestling tournaments and guarantee that every boy will see action on the mats.

Scarlet 'Living On Borrowed Time', But Grimsley Still Sees 24-14 Win

By WILL GRIMSLEY

New York (AP) — Football players may not be as big or as many in the Ivy League, but the blood boils just as hot and passions run just as high.

So to Harvard goes the baton for the weekly sprint to Upset Gulch—over previously unbeaten and untied Princeton. The course should be smooth and untroubled for Texas, Auburn and other favorites.

Pokes at the pigskin:

Harvard 14, Princeton 8: The Crimson, at home, shackle the Tigers' Cosmo Iacavazzi and win a defensive bruiser.

Texas 20, Baylor 14: The Longhorns can't stop Don Trull completely but they can hit back more often.

Auburn 20, Mississippi State 0: The boys from the Delta do not have the equipment to stop Jimmy Sidle.

Navy 24, Maryland 7: Here's a pick for Wayne Hardin's Midshipmen, without mentioning You-Know-Who.

Pittsburgh 20, Notre Dame 14: Both teams have waded through a suicidal schedule, but Pitt should have greater drive.

Illinois 14, Michigan 7: Pete Elliott proves he is not his brother's Bump keeper.

Nebraska 24, Kansas 14: The Cornhuskers still living on borrowed time after last week's squeaker.

Ohio State 19, Penn State 14: Tom Barrington keeps the Buckeyes in the Rose Bowl picture.

Washington 23, California 13: The Golden Bears are showing more fight, but the Huskies see the sign to Pasadena.

Oregon 19, Washington State 12: The Webfoots can waddle through this one come hell or high water.

Louisiana State 15, Texas Christian 8: Both smarting from discouraging defeats, but LSU at home.

Rice 13, Arkansas 7: When in doubt in a tough Southwest game, take the home team.

Snail Racing Latest Barroom Craze; Garlic Water Makes Creepers Crawl

. . . NORTH AMERICAN HURDLE CHAMPIONSHIPS NEXT

Jamestown, N.Y. (AP)—Mamaia came charging down to the wire. She stuck her head across the finish line.

The spectators let out a cheer.

Sounds like a horse race, doesn't it?

You're wrong. Mamaia and Fuzzy-Wuzzy are snails.

The North American Snail Sprint Championship had just been decided. The victorious and the beaten in the field of 20 started looking forward to the next event, the North American snail hurdles meet.

Owner, trainer and handler Louie Cusimano grinned:

'Why Not?'

"They have a national turtle racing meet, a national frog hopping championship, why not a North American snail racing event?"

Snail racing is being conducted here on an organized basis for the first time in the nation, Cusiamano claims.

Hotbeds for the new fad are Jamestown and the nearby village of Kennedy, where Robin Ormond maintains a 40-snail stable all rated Class A, Class B, etc.

Ormond and Cusiamano are kingpins of snail racing in this area at present, but others are making a bid. Stables are springing up throughout the area and meets are commonplace at bars and restaurants.

'Blood Lines'

"We'll keep right on winning," Ormond claims. "Blood lines count, you know."

Ormond and Cusimano decided to settle what they termed the "North American" championship with four "heat" races at a neutral bar. Cusimano won 18-17 under a point system set up by the two men.

"Now we are planning the North American hurdles championships," Cusimano has announced. "We'll have inch-high hurdles every few inches along the track for them to hop over."

Ormond originated snail racing here. The Kennedy restaurant owner purchased several larger creepers, painted numbers and stable colors on their shells. The track is an 18-inch painted plyboard 12 inches wide with crossing lines, giving it the appearance of a miniature football field.

What makes snails run? Garlic water.

"You wet down the course with garlic water," a handler explains.

"Make it weak at the starting gate and stronger near the finish line. They like it and head where the garlic flavor is strongest."

Exhibition Runs

Often races are staged on unflavored courses. "We call them freshwater exhibition races," says Cusimano, a Jamestown grocer.

A race lasts from 10 minutes to a one-hour limit. Snails, you know, are prone to wander occasionally.

Don't get the idea snails don't have a following.

When Cusimano and Ormond matched their stables, several carloads of supporters drove the nine miles from Kennedy to root for their favorite.

One spectator put it this way: "It can be exciting at that." A local college professor described it differently:

"Our mental processes must be deteriorating much faster than some educators have suspected."

JC Poll Puts McCook 10th

Dodge City, Kan. (AP)—Northeastern Oklahoma with an 8-0 record and the leader for five consecutive weeks, is rated No. 1 in the final football coaches poll of the National Junior College Athletic Association.

Only Coffeeville, Kan., ranked 12th with a 7-1 record, stands between Northeastern and an unbeaten season. The teams play Nov. 14.

Cameron of Lawton, Okla., 6-2, held its second-place ranking. Mason City, Iowa, 7-0, retained third place.

Other teams in the top 20, in order:

Dope, Mock Races Part Of British Cleanup Plot

London (AP) — The English launched a campaign to beat race horse dopers by doping the horses themselves in mock races.

The Animal Health Trust at Newmarket, headquarters of British flat racing, decided to make the controversial experiment.

The move is backed by a grant of $56,000 from the betting levy board. It's designed to help race course officials, owners and any others dedicated to the good name of horse racing.

The board gets its funds from betting — from bookies who take in the money. The idea is that owners and trainers will supply horses for the sham races. Some of the runners will be given "shots"—to make them win or lose. Veterinary surgeons will watch the races.

Reason for the mock races: Allegations that there has been wholesale doping of horses in Britain. It's thought that these mock doping races can provide ammunition in the fight against the gangsters who do it for profit.

Dr. Walter Wooldridge, chairman and research director of the Animal Health Trust, said: "Our first step will be to test the effects of chemicals on horses. We want to see what happens.

"Later drugs will be given to ponies under exercise.

"Eventually they will be given to steeplechasers and thoroughbred race horses under actual racing conditions."

Wooldridge said the horses would not suffer.

"Only a small amount of drug will be used," he said.

The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals warned: "We'll be watching. Anything that looks cruel to the animals involved we shall protest and fight."

Road Program Planned For Orphaned Fighters

Lincoln's amateur fighters were officially listed as 'orphans' Wednesday.

Manager Dick Matthews of the sponsoring Roberts Dairy announced plans for a program which will for the time being be strictly a road show.

Matthews is currently busy lining up smoker appearances for the Lincoln teams with possible journeys to Omaha, Norfolk, Grand Island or just about anywhere matches can be arranged.

Matthews said Lincoln has potentially its best array of talent in years, but the team was left sponsorless last month when the American Legion announced its withdrawal from the program.

To date no other service group has displayed an interest despite the fact amateur boxing has been a money maker for several years in the Capital City.

Meanwhile, plans continue to materialize in Omaha for the Midwest meet and in Louisville, Ky. for the national Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions.

Bork & Co. Still No. 1

By Associated Press

Northern Illinois, riding the arm of record-breaking passer George Bork, continued Wednesday as the No. 1 small college team in the nation but Delaware's strong Blue Hens closed the gap on the front-runners in the latest Associated Press poll.

Northern Illinois, which had difficulty, subduing Western Illinois, 29-22, retained the top spot on three ballots and drew 74 points. Delaware, an impressive 34-6 victor over Buffalo, drew four first-place votes and 65 points.

Last week, Northern Illinois led with 85 points to 55 for Delaware in the voting of a special National panel of eight selectors. Points are counted on a basis of 10 for a first-place vote, nine for second, etc.

Kearney, Neb. slipped from ninth into a 10th place tie with Slippery Rock, Pa.

The Top Ten, with first-place votes in parentheses, record and points on 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis:

	W	L	T	Pts
1. Northern Illinois (3)	8	0	0	74
2. Delaware (4)	6	0	0	64
3. Florida A&M	4	1	0	42

Others receiving votes, listed alphabetically: Abilene Christian; Akron; Ashland, Ohio; California, Pa.; Clarion, Pa.; Earlham; East Carolina; College of Emporia; Findlay, Ohio; John Carroll; Northeastern Oklahoma; Northern South Dakota; Oklahoma Central; Prairie View A&M; Southwest Texas State (1); Texas A&I; Waynesburg; Westminster, Pa.

NWU To Host Cross Country

A seven team cross country meet is scheduled for Friday by Nebraska Wesleyan University.

Coach Woody Greeno has invited Dana, Hastings, Midland, Doane, Peru and Concordia to compete against his Plainsmen runners.

The 4-mile meet will be held at Thunder Ridge Golf course beginning at 4:00 p.m.

Deadline Nearing For AAU Cagers

The deadline is drawing near for teams and players to join Nebraska's AAU basketball league.

State chairman Bill Ketterer said today the loop will be formed and schedules completed at a Nov. 25 meeting.

Four teams are already entered, but at least two others would be welcomed.

Interested persons may contact Ketterer at his Lincoln home, 6628 Ballard St.

Midland Opponent '11' Includes Wesleyan Duo

A pair of Nebraska Wesleyan gridders have been named to Midland College's all-opponent team for 1963. Quarterback Mike Slatinsky and end Dwight Tietjen were the Plainsmen that impressed the Tri-State Conference champions.

The Animal Health Trust at Newmarket, headquarters of British flat racing, decided to make the controversial experiment.

The move is backed by a grant of $56,000 from the betting levy board. It's designed to help race course officials, owners and any others dedicated to the good name of horse racing.

The board gets its funds from betting — from bookies who take in the money. The idea is that owners and trainers will supply horses for the sham races. Some of the runners will be given "shots"—to make them win or lose. Veterinary surgeons will watch the races.

Reason for the mock races: Allegations that there has been wholesale doping of horses in Britain. It's thought that these mock doping races can provide ammunition in the fight against the gangsters who do it for profit.

Dr. Walter Wooldridge, chairman and research director of the Animal Health Trust, said: "Our first step will be to test the effects of chemicals on horses. We want to see what happens.

"Later drugs will be given to ponies under exercise.

"Eventually they will be given to steeplechasers and thoroughbred race horses under actual racing conditions."

Wooldridge said the horses would not suffer.

"Only a small amount of drug will be used," he said.

The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals warned: "We'll be watching. Anything that looks cruel to the animals involved we shall protest and fight."

Road Program Planned For Orphaned Fighters

Lincoln's amateur fighters were officially listed as 'orphans' Wednesday.

Manager Dick Matthews of the sponsoring Roberts Dairy announced plans for a program which will for the time being be strictly a road show.

Matthews is currently busy lining up smoker appearances for the Lincoln teams with possible journeys to Omaha, Norfolk, Grand Island or just about anywhere matches can be arranged.

Matthews said Lincoln has potentially its best array of talent in years, but the team was left sponsorless last month when the American Legion announced its withdrawal from the program.

To date no other service group has displayed an interest despite the fact amateur boxing has been a money maker for several years in the Capital City.

Meanwhile, plans continue to materialize in Omaha for the Midwest meet and in Louisville, Ky. for the national Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions.

Bork & Co. Still No. 1

By Associated Press

Northern Illinois, riding the arm of record-breaking passer George Bork, continued Wednesday as the No. 1 small college team in the nation but Delaware's strong Blue Hens closed the gap on the front-runners in the latest Associated Press poll.

Northern Illinois, which had difficulty, subduing Western Illinois, 29-22, retained the top spot on three ballots and drew 74 points. Delaware, an impressive 34-6 victor over Buffalo, drew four first-place votes and 65 points.

Last week, Northern Illinois led with 85 points to 55 for Delaware in the voting of a special National panel of eight selectors. Points are counted on a basis of 10 for a first-place vote, nine for second, etc.

Kearney, Neb. slipped from ninth into a 10th place tie with Slippery Rock, Pa.

The Top Ten, with first-place votes in parentheses, record and points on 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis:

	W	L	T	Pts
1. Northern Illinois (3)	8	0	0	74
2. Delaware (4)	6	0	0	64
3. Florida A&M	4	1	0	42
4. Wittenberg	6	0	1	38
5. South Dakota State	7	1	0	31
6. St. John's, Minn.	8	0	0	22
7. Massachusetts	5	0	1	21
8. San Diego State	5	1	0	21
9. McNeese State	5	0	0	13
10. Kearney, Neb.	8	0	0	11
Slippery Rock, Pa.	5	1	0	11

Others receiving votes, listed alphabetically: Abilene Christian; Akron; Ashland, Ohio; California, Pa.; Clarion, Pa.; Earlham; East Carolina; College of Emporia; Findlay, Ohio; John Carell; Northeastern Oklahoma; Northern South Dakota; Oklahoma Central; Prairie View A&M; Southwest Texas State (1); Texas A&I; Waynesburg; Westminster, Pa.

NWU To Host Cross Country

A seven team cross country meet is scheduled for Friday by Nebraska Wesleyan University.

Coach Woody Greeno has invited Dana, Hastings, Midland, Doane, Peru and Concordia to compete against his Plainsmen runners.

The 4-mile meet will be held at Thunder Ridge Golf course beginning at 4:00 p.m.

Deadline Nearing For AAU Cagers

The deadline is drawing near for teams and players to join Nebraska's AAU basketball league.

State chairman Bill Ketterer said today the loop will be formed and schedules completed at a Nov. 25 meeting.

Four teams are already entered, but at least two others would be welcomed.

Interested persons may contact Ketterer at his Lincoln home, 6628 Ballard St.

Midland Opponent '11' Includes Wesleyan Duo

A pair of Nebraska Wesleyan gridders have been named to Midland College's all-opponent team for 1963. Quarterback Mike Slatinsky and end Dwight Tietjen were the Plainsmen that impressed the Tri-State Conference champions.

The squad:

Quarterback—Mike Slatinsky, Nebraska Wesleyan; halfbacks—Jerry Kliesin, Wayne, Jesse Bankston, Yankton; fullback—Bob Kovar, Northwestern; ends—Dwight Tietjen, Nebraska Wesleyan, Al Graver, Concordia; tackles—Lyle Buddenhagen, Westmar; Bob Oetting, Concordia; guards—Ron White, Wayne, Dennis Oetting, Concordia; center—Ron Donald, Westmar.

Central Nebraska Loop Picks All-League Team

Giltner — Central Nebraska Conference coaches have named a 10-man all-conference football team.

The selections:

Linemen—Jim Treat and Ken Schroeder, Doniphan; Ron Jensen and Steve Gustafson, Hordville; Gary Erb and Bob Brummund, Giltner.

Backs — Dave Rainforth, Doniphan; Arthur Salmen, Trumbull; Larry Johnson, Hordville; Ron Larson, Marquette.

NIKITA MAY NIX WHEAT

Moscow (AP) — Complaining of high U.S. shipping costs, Premier Khrushchev said Wednesday that a deal to buy American wheat may be canceled.

"We want equal conditions on an equal footing with other countries," he told a group of visiting American businessmen. "And we agreed to use American ships, but at world prices."

The premier made the statement in the course of a long discussion in which he again called for more trade with the United States.

Khrushchev showed impatience at the pace of negotiations in Washington on the wheat deal, which might involve $250 million in American grain.

"It may well happen," he said, "that we will let you eat your own grain. I do have a feeling one might not come to an agreement on the grain deal.

"I just received some information on the progress of the talks there and we have sent instructions to our representatives at the talks to say that if the Americans go on insisting on . . . discriminatory terms, then our delegation will break off the talks and will leave."

In a speech Sept. 26 admitting that crop failures had forced him to make huge grain purchases from Canada and Australia, Khrushchev had said U.S. wheat might not be needed.

STRONTIUM CONTENT OF MILK KEEPS DECLINING

Washington (AP) — It appears that the peak has been reached for this country in deposits of strontium 90 unless there is further nuclear testing the air, a Public Health Service official said Wednesday.

Dr. Donald R. Chadwick, chief of the service's division of radiological health, made that evaluation in commenting on a new report showing that the strontium 90 content of milk continued to decline in August in most of the nation.

Chadwick said it appears the peak was reached during June, when the average daily level for 62 sampling stations throughout the nation was 32 picocuries to a liter of milk. There was a decline to 31 in the daily average during July, and to 28 in August.

Changed

A picocurie is one-millionth of one-millionth of a curie, and was previously referred to as a micromicrocurie. A curie is the equivalent of the radioactivity produced by one gram of radium. A liter is slightly more than a quart.

The trend downward after June has been pretty much in line with predictions made earlier this year by the Federal Radiation Council, Chadwick noted.

The council forecast that the strontium 90 fallout this year would be about double that of 1962, and that this would be the peak year. The prediction was based on U.S. and Soviet tests last year.

Much Feared

Strontium 90, one of the most feared elements of radioactive fallout, lodges in the bones and can cause cancer.

During August the strontium 90 content of milk was reported higher at 13 sampling stations as compared with the July readings. The levels were the same at four stations. The other 45 sampling stations showed decreases.

Minot, N.D., continued to have the highest average daily level during August, at 58 picocuries, down from the record 67 of July. The July total was the highest for an individual station since records have been kept.

Second Place

The high readings at Minot during recent months have moved that station into second place in the nation in total picocuries recorded in the 12 months ended with August. Minot's total was 13,580, up from 12,138 in the year ended a month earlier.

Little Rock, Ark., pretty regularly the top station on the basis of the 12-month totals, stayed on top with a total of 14,196 for the year ended in August. New Orleans, which was in second place for July, was third in August, with a total of 13,307 for the 12 months.

Cliff N. Ogden Files For State Legislature Spot

Cliff N. Ogden of Omaha Wednesday filed for state senator from Douglas County's 10th legislative district.

Ogden served in the 1943 and 1945 Unicameral sessions from the 10th District and in 1949 was appointed by the then Governor Val Peterson to succeed Senator Henry D. Kosman, who had resigned.

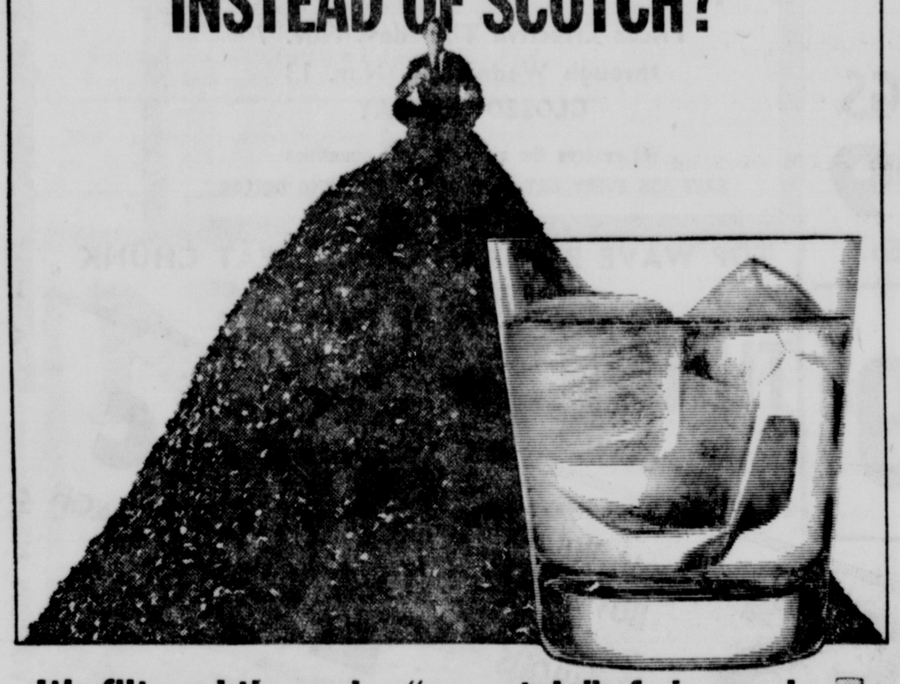
WHY SMIRNOFF INSTEAD OF SCOTCH?



It's filtered through a "mountain" of charcoal

Scotch whisky has always been considered an extremely smooth liquor. Today many people have found that Smirnoff is still smoother. Every drop is filtered and refined through 7 tons of activated charcoal. This "black magic" removes most of the congeners. No wonder Smirnoff is the world's finest liquor; crystal clear, flawless and easy to take, even on-the-rocks. Today Smirnoff already outsells every brand of Scotch in America. Isn't it time you tried it?

Lincoln Chalks Up 37th Straight Win

. . . UNITED APPEAL HITS GOAL

Lincoln residents extended their winning streak to 37 Wednesday.

For the 37th straight year, the city's Community Chest-Red Cross United Appeal has reached its goal.

Contributions totaled $749,758 as volunteers turned in their final reports Wednesday. The goal was $747,924.

Teri Bullock, 4, representing the Malone Community Center, was revealed as the "Littlest Angel," a title she won because her team, headed by "Lt. Gen." Gene Wolken turned in the highest percentage of goal during contest week.

Teri is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bullock, 2002 S. She received a stuffed teddy bear.

"Good Guy Jr."

Crowned "Good Guy Jr." was Russell Hand, 5, representing LARC School and Dr. Norman Thorpe's team of volunteers. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Daughtery, 2003 G, he received a football autographed by the University of Nebraska football team.

Named "Volunteer Extraordinaire" were Warren Jennings, Norman Thrope and Wolken. They were crowned by NU homecoming queen Carol Klein.

Campaign chairman Harry Seward received a surprise: A crown reading $747,924"—the campaign goal—presented by his daughter, Cordy.

Praise

Seward praised Lincoln and the volunteers who helped put the drive over. He said:

"It is a pleasure to report another successful campaign for Lincoln's United Appeal. While we report our success by matching dollars, raised and pledged, with a dollar goal, our true success has much deeper meaning.

"Lincoln citizens believe in the support of our 27 agencies and their activities. They express this belief by responding to the thousands of volunteer solicitors who make their many calls. The gift of time, heart and conscience is our success.

"I am deeply grateful to the volunteers in the campaign organization, to the staff of the Lincoln Community Chest, the staff of the Lancaster County Chapter of the American Red Cross, the news media, the business community and all the citizens of Lincoln who worked together to make this our 37th successful campaign."

Division Totals

Wednesday's reports showed the following division totals, with division, chairman, goal, amount collected and per cent of goal achieved listed in that order:

Advance gifts, Gene Tallman, $171,000, $171,344, 100.2; Business and Government, Charles Sayre, $170,000, $170,991, 100.5; Unit Firms, Howard Chapin, $393,000, $393,127, 100; Women's Division, Mrs. Don Weller, $13,924, $14,295, 102.

Lincoln residents employed in Omaha's Western Electric plant turned in contributions totaling $2,332.

Carpenter Says He's The Man To Defeat Morrison

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff said Wednesday night the Republican Party needs a candidate who can beat Gov. Morrison and added he is the man who can do it.

Appearing on a local television news show, Carpenter said his problem is that he cannot win the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

He said that if he could, he would be strongly in favor of a partisan Legislature and would definitely oppose a state income tax. In addition, Carpenter said he would provide the party with good leadership.

Another senator appearing on the show, Michael Russillo of Omaha, agreed that Morrison can be defeated but only if all Republicans support the GOP nominee.

Russillo said that he has never been able to figure out exactly what Carpenter's political affiliation really is.

Exalted Ruler Of Elks To Address Lincoln Banquet

Ronald J. Dunn of Oneida, N.Y., grand exalted ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, will address a banquet at the Lincoln Elks Lodge Friday.

Earlier in the day Dunn will address an Omaha Elks luncheon, break ground for a new Omaha lodge home, and tour Offutt Air Force Base.

Saturday, the national Elks leader will visit Gov. Frank Morrison and attent the Kansas-Nebraska football game, and Sunday he will dedicate a new lodge home at Cozad.

Lincoln Chalks Up 37th Straight Win

. . . UNITED APPEAL HITS GOAL

Lincoln residents extended their winning streak to 37 Wednesday.

For the 37th straight year, the city's Community Chest-Red Cross United Appeal has reached its goal.

Contributions totaled $749,758 as volunteers turned in their final reports Wednesday. The goal was $747,924.

Teri Bullock, 4, representing the Malone Community Center, was revealed as the "Littlest Angel," a title she won because her team, headed by "Lt. Gen." Gene Wolken turned in the highest percentage of goal during contest week.

Teri is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bullock, 2002 S. She received a stuffed teddy bear.

"Good Guy Jr."

Crowned "Good Guy Jr." was Russell Hand, 5, representing LARC School and Dr. Norman Thorpe's team of volunteers. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Daughtery, 2003 G, he received a football autographed by the University of Nebraska football team.

Named "Volunteer Extraordinaire" were Warren Jennings, Norman Thrope and Wolken. They were crowned by NU homecoming queen Carol Klein.

Praise

Seward praised Lincoln and the volunteers who helped put the drive over. He said:

"It is a pleasure to report another successful campaign for Lincoln's United Appeal. While we report our success by matching dollars, raised and pledged, with a dollar goal, our true success has much deeper meaning.

"Lincoln citizens believe in the support of our 27 agencies and their activities. They express this belief by responding to the thousands of volunteer solicitors who make their many calls. The gift of time, heart and conscience is our success.

"I am deeply grateful to the volunteers in the campaign organization, to the staff of the Lincoln Community Chest, the staff of the Lancaster County Chapter of the American Red Cross, the news media, the business community and all the citizens of Lincoln who worked together to make this our 37th successful campaign."

Division Totals

Wednesday's reports showed the following division totals, with division, chairman, goal, amount collected and per cent of goal achieved listed in that order:

Advance gifts, Gene Tallman, $171,000, $171,344, 100.2; Business and Government, Charles Sayre, $170,000, $170,991, 100.5; Unit Firms, Howard Chapin, $393,000, $393,127, 100; Women's Division, Mrs. Don Weller, $13,924, $14,295, 102.

Lincoln residents employed in Omaha's Western Electric plant turned in contributions totaling $2,332.

Carpenter Says He's The Man To Defeat Morrison

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff said Wednesday night the Republican Party needs a candidate who can beat Gov. Morrison and added he is the man who can do it.

Appearing on a local television news show, Carpenter said his problem is that he cannot win the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

He said that if he could, he would be strongly in favor of a partisan Legislature and would definitely oppose a state income tax. In addition, Carpenter said he would provide the party with good leadership.

Another senator appearing on the show, Michael Russillo of Omaha, agreed that Morrison can be defeated but only if all Republicans support the GOP nominee.

Russillo said that he has never been able to figure out exactly what Carpenter's political affiliation really is.

Exalted Ruler Of Elks To Address Lincoln Banquet

Ronald J Dunn of Oneida, N Y, grand exalted ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, will address a banquet at the Lincoln Elks Lodge Friday.

Earlier in the day Dunn will address an Omaha Elks luncheon, break ground for a new Omaha lodge home, and tour Offutt Air Force Base.

Saturday, the national Elks leader will visit Gov. Frank Morrison and attent the Kansas-Nebraska football game, and Sunday he will dedicate a new lodge home at Cozad

Stocks Suffer Sharp Decline

New York (AP) — The stock market Wednesday took its sharpest setback in more than a month following news that the Federal Reserve Board had increased requirements for buying stocks on credit. Trading was fairly heavy.

It was the third sharp decline in five sessions, so the drop was not an isolated phenomenon but appeared to fit into a more generalized pattern, analysts said.

The drop a week ago was linked by experts to the "overbought" condition of the market following the rise to a series of new highs in the averages Monday's retreat was connected with some nervousness over what dividend action the General Motors directors might take.

The newest "excuse" was the hike in margin—or down payment—requirements to 70 per cent of the price of a stock from 50 per cent.

Long term profits were taken in a wide range of blue chips as well as many of the more volatile stocks which have made sensational gains this year.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 1.9 to 276.1 with industrials down 3.1, rails down .4 and utilities down 1.1.

Of 1,352 issues traded 773 declined and 295 advanced. New highs for the year totaled 15 and new lows 38.

Volume totaled 5.59—million shares compared with 5.4 million Monday. The New York Stock Exchange was closed Tuesday.

Ten of the 15 most active stocks fell, four rose and Brunswick was unchanged.

The price trend was also sharply lower on the American Stock Exchange. Volume was 1.44—million shares compared with 1.45 million Monday.

U.S. government bonds dropped to 1963 lows. Corporate bonds were mixed in heavy volume.

Norfolk Issue Loses Again; 3 Others Win

From Press Dispatches

For the third time in less than two years, Norfolk voters turned down a bond issue for a new high school building, while residents of Gibbon, Mullen and Homer approved special school bond issues.

Incomplete returns Wednesday showed less than 43% of the voters at Norfolk favoring the $1,900,000 bond issue, compared with a required 55%. The vote was 2,080 yes and 2,817 no.

The Norfolk bond issue would have required an estimated additional mill levy for school bond retirement of 4.96, raising the present mill levy to 36.78 for school purposes.

Mullen voters gave 230 to 143 approval to a $288,000 bond issue to finance an addition to the town school building, County Clerk Walter L. Wadlow reported.

In a special election at Gibbon voters gave overwhelming approval to a $359,000 bond issue for an addition to the Gibbon school building. The addition will provide an auditorium and additional classrooms to the present structure built in 1957.

At Homer the $568,000 issue for a new grade and high school building was approved 375 to 86.

Curtis Critical Of Pay Hikes

Washington (AP)—Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., opposing federal salary increases, said Wednesday government officials could resign if they don't like their pay.

Curtis singled out for criticism an argument that top-echelon federal officials should have salary increases based upon "comparability with industry."

"The idea that senators and congressmen, cabinet officers and Supreme Court justices are a breed apart and deserving of especially fat salary increases, is ridiculous," Curtis said.

"I cannot believe that individuals who accept federal appointments to high, policy-making position are persuaded to serve solely because of monetary return. Public service continues to attract men and women of high caliber who dedicate themselves to the nation's well-being.

"In addition, in today's situation, it is a matter of simple arithmetic. We are being bulldozed toward a tax cut. We are faced with a mounting national deficit. We are at present time debating authorizations for foreign aid of astronomical proportions.

"We cannot in good conscience make all of this add up—and add as well a totally unnecessary and indefensible salary hike for high officials which would burden America's taxpayers still further."

Trial Attorneys Elect Fremonter

Omaha (AP)—The Nebraska Association of Trial Attorneys elected George Svoboda of Fremont as its new president Wednesday.

Norman Krivosha, Lincoln, was chosen vice president; John P. Miller, Omaha, secretary, and Charles Noren, Lincoln treasurer.

Woman Loses Part Of Arm In Grinder

Ord (AP) — A young woman lost part of her forearm Tuesday evening climaxing an ordeal after the arm became caught in a meat grinder.

Catherine Piskorski, 26, manager of the Ord Cold Storage Plant, was feeding deer meat into the grinder when her hand became caught and her arm was drawn into the machine.

Drs. Paul Martin and Otis Miller gave her an injection to ease the pain and with the help of Police Officer George Svoboda carried her and the grinder to an ambulance.

An Ord mechanic, Syl Shotkoski, extricated the arm and Miss Piskorski was able to walk from the ambulance to the hospital where the forearm was amputated.

She was reported in fair condition at the hospital Wednesday.

T&M Low On Vine Street Project Bids

T & M Construction Co. was apparent low bidder at $11,952 Wednesday for the construction of sidewalks on both sides of Vine from 58th to 66th.

Other bidders for the sidewalk district were Roberts Construction, $14,392.50, and Dobson Bros. Construction Co., $14,392.50.

Dobson Bros. was apparent low bidder for the water and sewer districts in Huntington Addition near 70th and A.

Dobson bid $47,880 for Water District 615 as compared with N. L. Cole Construction, $49,154, and H. R. Bookstrom Construction, $50,175.

Dobson's bid on Sewer District 758 was $25,935, compared with Cole, $27,256, and Bookstrom, $26,780.

On 15,125 gallons of chemical spray for the Dutch elm disease control program, Thompson-Hayward Chemical Co. was apparent low bidder at $11,646.25. Five other bids ranged upward to $22,687.50.

Moore Business Forms Inc. was apparently low at $4,537.50 for furnishing police traffic tickets as compared with Victor Business Forms, $4,802.71.

International Harvester was low at $5,620 for furnishing two trucks with trade for the Park Department as compared with Misle Chevolet, $5,889, and O'Shea-Rogers motor Co., $5,965.

Freight Trains Collide; 2 Die, Three Injured

Quincy, Wash. (AP) — An eastbound Great Northern local freight train missed a siding and crashed into a waiting westbound main line freight here Wednesday. Two trainmen were killed and three injured.

Dead are the fireman of the 14-car local, Ray Barnart, about 40, of Wenatchee, and the local's engineer, Nick Winkler, 38, of Spokane.

The engineer of the 14-car cross-country freight, John C. Bergman, 47, of Spokane, was critically injured. His fireman, Bob Griffin, and another trainman, Frank Garske, suffered leg injuries.

Six cars of the local overturned and the diesel locomotive units of both trains were derailed. The Great Northern main line was blocked and not expected to be reopened until afternoon.

Notice is hereby given that sealed Proposals will be received by the University of Nebraska, at the office of the Division of Purchases and Procurement, Room 511, Administration Building, at 14th and R Street, Lincoln, Nebraska, until 2:00 o'clock p.m., November 20, 1963, for the cost of furnishing and constructing the following at the University of Nebraska, City Campus:

CHILLING EQUIPMENT BUILDING, WIRING AND PIPING

All Proposals will be opened and read aloud at the above time. Proposals received after the time stated above will not be considered.

Plans and specifications are obtainable at the office of the Administrator of the Physical Plant, Room 229, Nebraska Hall, at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Nebraska, or from Lutz, Daily & Brain Consulting Engineers, 819 Finance Building, Kansas City 5, Missouri, upon deposit of $25.00 per set in the form of a certified or cashier's check, payable to the firm of Lutz, Daily & Brain, Consulting Engineers. Deposit will be refunded upon return of the documents in good condition within ten (10) days after award.

No bidder may withdraw his Proposal for a period of 45 days after the scheduled closing time for the receipt of Proposals. Each Proposal shall be accompanied by a certified check or cashier's check on a solvent Nebraska bank, or a bidder's bond with an authorized surety company as surety, the amount of which is not less than five percent (5%) of the bid price, payable to the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Nebraska, as liquidated damages in case the person or company to whom the Contract is awarded fails, or refuses, to enter into the Contract and furnish a satisfactory performance bond in the penal sum of the full amount of the Contract price within ten (10) days of the notice of such an award. If a certified or cashier's check or bid bond as herein set forth is not received with the Proposal, same will not be considered. Bid bonds must be signed by the resident agent.

The University of Nebraska at Lincoln, Nebraska, reserves the right to reject any and all Proposals and to waive any irregularities or informalities in any Proposal.

Stocks Suffer Sharp Decline

New York (AP) — The stock market Wednesday took its sharpest setback in more than a month following news that the Federal Reserve Board had increased requirements for buying stocks on credit. Trading was fairly heavy.

It was the third sharp decline in five sessions, so the drop was not an isolated phenomenon but appeared to fit into a more generalized pattern, analysts said.

The drop a week ago was linked by experts to the "overbought" condition of the market following the rise to a series of new highs in the averages Monday's retreat was connected with some nervousness over what dividend action the General Motors directors might take.

The newest "excuse" was the hike in margin—or down payment—requirements to 70 per cent of the price of a stock from 50 per cent.

Long term profits were taken in a wide range of blue chips as well as many of the more volatile stocks which have made sensational gains this year.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 1.9 to 278.1 with industrials down 3.1, rails down .4 and utilities down 1.1.

Of 1,352 issues traded 773 declined and 295 advanced. New highs for the year totaled 15 and new lows 38.

Volume totaled 5.39—million shares compared with 5.4 million Monday. The New York Stock Exchange was closed Tuesday.

Ten of the 15 most active stocks fell, four rose and Brunswick was unchanged.

The price trend was also sharply lower on the American Stock Exchange. Volume was 1.44—million shares compared with 1.43 million Monday.

U.S. government bonds dropped to 1963 lows. Corporate bonds were mixed in heavy volume.

Norfolk Issue Loses Again; 3 Others Win

From Press Dispatches

For the third time in less than two years, Norfolk voters turned down a bond issue for a new high school building, while residents of Gibbon, Mullen and Homer approved special school bond issues.

Incomplete returns Wednesday showed less than 43% of the voters at Norfolk favoring the $1,900,000 bond issue, compared with a required 55%. The vote was 2,080 yes and 2,817 no.

The Norfolk bond issue would have required an estimated additional mill levy for school bond retirement of 4.96, raising the present mill levy to 36.78 for school purposes.

Mullen voters gave 230 to 143 approval to a $288,000 bond issue to finance an addition to the town school building, County Clerk Walter L. Wedlow reported.

In a special election at Gibbon voters gave overwhelming approval to a $359,000 bond issue for an addition to the Gibbon school building. The addition will provide an auditorium and additional classrooms to the present structure built in 1957.

At Homer the $568,000 issue for a new grade and high school building was approved 375 to 86.

Curtis Critical Of Pay Hikes

Washington (AP)—Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., opposing federal salary increases, said Wednesday government officials could resign if they don't like their pay.

Curtis singled out for criticism an argument that top-echelon federal officials should have salary increases based upon "comparability with industry."

"The idea that senators and congressmen, cabinet officers and Supreme Court justices are a breed apart and deserving of especially fat salary increases, is ridiculous," Curtis said.

"I cannot believe that individuals who accept federal appointments to high, policy-making position are persuaded to serve solely because of monetary return. Public service continues to attract men and women of high caliber who dedicate themselves to the nation's well-being.

"In addition, in today's situation, it is a matter of simple arithmetic. We are being bulldozed toward a tax cut. We are faced with a mounting national deficit. We are at present time debating authorizations for foreign aid of astronomical proportions.

"We cannot in good conscience make all of this add up—and add as well a totally unnecessary and indefensible salary hike for high officials which would burden America's taxpayers still further."

Trial Attorneys Elect Fremonter

Omaha (AP)—The Nebraska Association of Trial Attorneys elected George Svoboda of Fremont as its new president Wednesday.

Norman Krivosha, Lincoln, was chosen vice president; John P. Miller, Omaha, secretary, and Charles Noren, Lincoln treasurer.

Woman Loses Part Of Arm In Grinder

Ord (AP) — A young woman lost part of her forearm Tuesday evening climaxing an ordeal after the arm became caught in a meat grinder.

Catherine Piskorski, 26, manager of the Ord Cold Storage Plant, was feeding deer meat into the grinder when her hand became caught and her arm was drawn into the machine.

Drs. Paul Martin and Otis Miller gave her an injection to ease the pain and with the help of Police Officer George Svoboda carried her and the grinder to an ambulance.

An Ord mechanic, Syl Shotkoski, extricated the arm and Miss Piskorski was able to walk from the ambulance to the hospital where the forearm was amputated.

She was reported in fair condition at the hospital Wednesday.

T&M Low On Vine Street Project Bids

T & M Construction Co. was apparent low bidder at $11,952 Wednesday for the construction of sidewalks on both sides of Vine from 58th to 66th.

Other bidders for the sidewalk district were Roberts Construction, $14,392.50, and Dobson Bros. Construction Co., $14,392.50.

Dobson Bros. was apparent low bidder for the water and sewer districts in Huntington Addition near 70th and A.

Dobson bid $47,880 for Water District 615 as compared with N. L. Cole Construction, $49,154, and H. R. Bookstrom Construction, $50,175.

Dobson's bid on Sewer District 758 was $25,935, compared with Cole, $27,256, and Bookstrom, $26,780.

On 15,125 gallons of chemical spray for the Dutch elm disease control program, Thompson-Hayward Chemical Co. was apparent low bidder at $11,646.25. Five other bids ranged upward to $22,687.50.

Moore Business Forms Inc. was apparently low at $4,537.50 for furnishing police traffic tickets as compared with Victor Business Forms, $4,802.71.

International Harvester was low at $5,620 for furnishing two trucks with trade for the Park Department as compared with Misle Chevolet, $5,889, and O'Shea-Rogers motor Co., $5,965.

Freight Trains Collide; 2 Die, Three Injured

Quincy, Wash. (AP) — An eastbound Great Northern local freight train missed a siding and crashed into a waiting westbound main line freight here Wednesday. Two trainmen were killed and three injured.

Dead are the fireman of the 14-car local, Ray Barnart, about 40, of Wenatchee, and the local's engineer, Nick Winkler, 38, of Spokane.

The engineer of the 14-car cross-country freight, John C. Bergman, 47, of Spokane, was critically injured. His fireman, Bob Griffin, and another trainman, Frank Garske, suffered leg injuries.

Six cars of the local overturned and the diesel locomotive units of both trains were derailed. The Great Northern main line was blocked and not expected to be reopened until afternoon.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Notice is hereby given that sealed Proposals will be received by the University of Nebraska, at the office of the Division of Purchases and Procurement, Room 311, Administration Building, at 14th & R Street, Lincoln, Nebraska, until 2:00 o'clock p.m., November 20, 1963, for the cost of furnishing and constructing the following at the University of Nebraska, City Campus:

CHILLING EQUIPMENT BUILDING, WIRING AND PIPING

All Proposals will be opened and read aloud at the above time. Proposals received after the time stated above will not be considered.

Plans and specifications are obtainable at the office of the Administrator of the Physical Plant, Room 229, Nebraska Hall, at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Nebraska, or from Lutz, Daily & Brain Consulting Engineers, 819 Finance Building, Kansas City 5, Missouri, upon deposit of $25.00 per set in the form of a certified or cashier's check, payable to the firm of Lutz, Daily & Brain, Consulting Engineers. Deposit will be refunded upon return of the documents in good condition within ten (10) days after award.

No bidder may withdraw his Proposal for a period of 45 days after the scheduled closing time for the receipt of Proposals. Each Proposal shall be accompanied by a certified check or cashier's check on a solvent Nebraska bank, or a bidder's bond with an authorized surety company as surety; the amount of which is not less than five percent (5%) of the bid price, payable to the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Nebraska, as liquidated damages in case the person or company to whom the Contract is awarded fails, or refuses, to enter into the Contract and furnish a satisfactory performance bond in the penal sum of the full amount of the Contract price within ten (10) days of the notice of such an award. If a certified or cashier's check or bid bond as herein set forth is not received with the Proposal, same will not be considered. Bid bonds must be signed by the resident agent.

The University of Nebraska at Lincoln, Nebraska, reserves the right to reject any and all Proposals and to waive any irregularities or informalities in any Proposal.
